California Senate Rushes Anti-Alien Land Bill to Passage.

HEARS BRYAN BUT REFUSES TO HEED

Washington Has Not Yet Determined on Its Next Step.

Sacramento, Cal., April 30.—California's first step toward the enactment of an alien-land law contrary to the advice of Secretary of State Bryan and President Wilson was taken late last night within three minutes after Secretary Bryan told the legislative conference that his official message had been spoken.

The senate before which the Birdsell-Thompson bill was pending, met in hurried session and within three minutes voted to substitute for that measure the new draft known as the Webb act, which was adopted by Attorney General Webb yesterday. The substitute was adopted as an amendment and the bill sent to the printer with a rush order.

Chicago, April 30.—Mrs. Mary Ann Inglish, said to have been the creator of the ham and egg sandwich and known to students at the University of Chicago as "Merely Mary Ann," died yesterday. Twenty years ago she established a small restaurant in one corner of the university athletic field and soon acquired a large patronage among the students on account of the excellence of her sandwiches and pastry.

SOME ARRESTS MADE

Auburn, N. Y., April 30.—Militia called out last night did not prevent rioting at the International Harvester company twine mills this morning. The latter fought with all the weapons of their sex and were taken to police headquarters, hitting, scratching and kicking.

Frank E. Cook and Lucile Cameron Marry at Crown Point.

PARENTS DID SAME

Scarcely anybody can be blamed for following the example set by one's parents, so when Frank E. Cook, of the Cook Realty Co., and a prominent club man, returned to Fort Wayne late Tuesday night with a bride and announcing to his friends and relatives that he and Miss Lucile Cameron, of Forgas, Conn., had been married at Crown Point during the afternoon, parental forgiveness was immediately forthcoming. Frank followed the example of his father, E. W. Cook, who eloped with Miss Charity Carnrike just thirty-three years ago and was married at Coldwater, Mich.

167 Penniless Men Assert They Were Banished from Dayton.

AFTER CLEARING UP FLOOD RUINS

Herded Aboard a Train as "Undesirables," Shipped to Chicago.

Chicago, April 30.—One hundred and sixty-seven penniless men who said they had been working at Dayton cleaning up wreckage left by the recent flood and who said they had been driven from the city as "undesirables," without receiving wages due them from the city of Dayton, arrived here today.

They explained their plight at the Desplaines street police station. Officials there told the matter before the United Charities. Many of the men come from cities near Dayton. Robert Abule, one of the number, said work was slack in Cincinnati, where he lived and he left his wife and family to get work at Dayton.

DAYTON ENTERS DENIAL.

No Injustice Save in Few Unavoidable Instances. Dayton, Ohio, April 30.—City and relief authorities were much exercised over a story from Chicago today that men had been driven from Dayton as "undesirables." They deny that injustice could have been done them, except in a few unavoidable instances.

WILL PUT END TO MILITANCY

British Home Office in Effort to Curb the Suffragettes.

ACTIVE LEADERS AGAIN ARRESTED

Police in Large Numbers Seize Headquarters of Militant Women.

London, April 30.—The British home office today inaugurated its active campaign to put an end to suffrage militancy. The headquarters of the Women's Social and Political union where many outrages are said to have been planned, was occupied by the police and all the active leaders taken into custody. Even "General" Mrs. Flora Drummond, who was out on bail, was arrested on a fresh charge of conspiring with the members of the Pankhurst family to commit malicious damage.

Over 100 policemen and detectives from Scotland Yard were engaged in the capture of militant officers. They had scarcely taken possession of the place when "General" Drummond, apparently ignorant of what had happened, arrived and was admitted, not realizing that she had voluntarily entered the lion's den until she found herself under arrest and on the way to the Bow street police station where she met other active officials of the society.

Archibald Rodkin, counsel for the treasury, prosecuted on behalf of the government. He said the proceedings involved a charge of conspiracy and had been taken with a view to bringing to an end "the state of affairs which has become dangerous to the civilized portion of the community in the British Isles." "The Women's Social and Political Union," he continued, "of which the defendants were ringleaders, had been responsible for an enormous amount of crime and vast inconvenience to the public."

CHICAGO COPPER MISSING.

Police Fear Williams Has Been Drowned or Murdered. Chicago, April 30.—Patrolman Gustave Williams who has walked a beat in Chicago for 29 years, has been missing since Sunday night and the police fear that he has been drowned or murdered. BRIDE KEEPS SILENT VIGIL WITH HUSBAND.

New York, April 30.—From midnight until 8 o'clock this morning a bride sat shivering on the steps of Grant's tomb, in speaking distance of her husband, but forbidden to exchange even the tenderest bits of honeymoon conversation. She was the wife of Louis Baumann, a patrolman on fixed post, to whom she was married at 9 o'clock last night. Baumann had expected to be relieved from duty, but an unromantic police captain ordered him to his post as usual. So his bride decided to keep the watch with him. Under the rules policemen on fixed beats are forbidden to speak to citizens except in the discharge of their duty. The pair left arm in arm this morning, sharp at 8 o'clock.

BEVERIDGE RAPS UNDERWOOD BILL

Measure Wrong Because Not Scientific, Says Indiana Man.

HE'S WILLING TO RUN

Springfield, Ill., April 30.—Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana last night presented the stand of the progressive party on the Underwood tariff bill. Mr. Beveridge was speaking to the state conference of the progressives.

Briefly, his declaration was that whether or not the Underwood bill ends many of the abuses of the Payne-Aldrich law, it is wrong in that it has not been devised in a scientific manner, but has been handled merely as a political question. The only solution, he said, is the adoption of the progressive plan for a non-partisan board, composed of experts, which will revise the schedule on a business basis.

Mr. Beveridge's speech was accepted by most of the leaders of the party in Illinois as a tacit avowal from the Indiana man that he is in readiness to make the fight for the presidency on a progressive platform with the tariff as the main issue.

Beveridge Stirs Heaters. The speech of Mr. Beveridge was delivered before a large audience which became greatly enthusiastic as he reached the high spots.

"The country needs and wants business peace," Mr. Beveridge said, "but there can be no settled and steady business conditions so long as our tariffs are made as the two old parties make them."

"The Underwood bill was framed by the same method by which the Payne-Aldrich bill was framed. Less than a dozen men framed it. Mr. Wilson has put all the power of the administration behind it and it is to be passed without many persons in congress knowing what is in it. It was framed without knowledge of the facts, just as the Payne-Aldrich bill was framed."

"Yet the country is told that the Underwood bill will lessen the cost of living, enlarge our foreign trade, strengthen business, and make wages higher."

"Everybody hopes this will prove true. But if it does not prove true, if the cost of living is not lowered, if business is not improved, if our foreign trade is not increased, if wages are not raised—then, on the contrary, the cost of living rises where it is or gets higher, if business gets poorer instead of better, if wages fall and men are thrown out of employment, what, then, can the country do?"

"It can do one of two things—it can turn either to the republican party or to the progressive party. If it turns to the republican party that party will say that the country has endorsed the Payne-Aldrich law; that after all Mr. Taft's Winona speech was true, and that the men and methods responsible for the Payne-Aldrich law are commissioned to make another tariff."

"If the country turns to the progressive party the method of making our tariffs will be changed. The tariff will be taken out of politics and handled as an economic question instead of a political question. A genuine, permanent, non-partisan tariff commission will be created and fixed in our government machinery as firmly as the interstate commerce commission is fixed. The tariff will be changed by schedules or even items whenever conditions demand, just as business men make changes in their business, and for the same reasons."

Example in Other Countries. "This is the method by which every other protective tariff country in the world handles its tariffs. We are the only people in the world who can afford politician made tariffs—and we can afford it only because we are so rich in resources and so few in numbers. We have only a hundred million inhabitants scattered over a continent far richer than all Europe combined. Yet rival countries, packed with people and having poor resources, are able to hold their own with us, and even to beat us, comparatively speaking, in foreign trade and domestic property. If these rival nations handled their tariffs and other business problems as we do, they would be bankrupt in a few years."

"So, through the progressive party alone can the country get that business peace which is necessary to a steady and growing property."

"The progressive party alone presents a program of sound business reforms. The progressive party alone can be trusted to carry out those reforms. The democratic party cannot, for it now has the chance and refuses to do so. The republican party cannot, for it had the chance and refused to do so. Neither of the two old parties wants those reforms and that was one of the reasons the people created a new party through which they could get these reforms."

Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the state board of health, came to Fort Wayne Tuesday evening from Decatur, and remained in the city all night, leaving early this morning for Indianapolis.

LIVING COST WAS HIGHEST IN 1912

Government Figures Show It Most Expensive in 23 Years.

HOW INCREASE CAME

Washington, April 30.—During the latter part of 1912 the cost of living in the United States was higher than at any other time during the past twenty-three years. The bureau of labor statistics has just issued a report on retail prices from 1890 to 1912.

The lowest cost was reached in each of the geographical divisions and in the United States as a whole, was in 1898. From that date to 1912 the total increase in the cost of living per year for a workingman's family by geographical divisions, was:

North Atlantic, $188; South Atlantic, $152; North Central, $187; South Central, $156, and Western, $152.

The approximate cost of a year's food supply for an average workingman's family, at average prices of each year by geographical divisions for 1890, 1904 (the low year) and 1912, was:

Division	1890	1904	1912
North Atlantic	$310	$300	$466
South Atlantic	274	274	417
North Central	288	276	493
South Central	269	255	441
Western	309	277	429

and finally to the governor who has stated that he will sign the measure at once.

"I shall take back to Washington to President Wilson a message of how California has treated his representative," said Secretary of State Bryan last night to members of the assembly and Governor Hiram W. Johnson, who were guests of Speaker Young at a dinner.

"What a delightful message it will be too. I will tell him how the legislature and the governor greeted his envoy in the same spirit in which he was sent. I cannot help but feel gratified at my reception."

The amended land bill, which provides that no alien who is ineligible to citizenship under the laws of the United States may hold real property in California, was adopted as a substitute for the pending measure by unanimous viva voce vote.

WASHINGTON YET HOPES.

Delay May Improve Chances for Modifying Amendments.

Washington, April 30.—Probably not until the legislative status of the substitute alien land owning bill, adopted by the California senate last night, officials will be able to determine upon its next step. There is little expectation here that the assembly will reverse the action of the senate in view of the reported breaking down of party lines in the legislature, but it is believed that the delay may improve the chances for the introduction of some amendment on the lines of the Webb bill, which presumably would have received the approval of the national government.

In explanation of the reluctance shown by Secretary Bryan to commit himself to the unqualified approval of any specific measure, it is pointed out by officials here that the administration desires to be quite free of the charge of attempting to control the proceeding of the legislature, confining itself to treaty rights and sound national policy. Also it is said that the state department has been left unembarrassed by any commitment in advance of negotiations with Japan, the government, which now seems certain to follow, instead of the rather informal exchanges that have been taking place.

ign and he married at St. Joe. Finding that they would be unable to reach home last night if they carried out their original plans, they went to Gary, and there met Harry Sommers, former manager of the Wayne club here, who directed them to Crown Point. With but little trouble they procured the necessary documents and the ceremony was solemnized at 3 o'clock in the afternoon by Justice of the Peace Nicholson.

The two returned to Fort Wayne late Tuesday evening and went to the home of E. H. Kilbourne, a friend of the groom, where they remained until this morning. In the meantime they had been assured that Mr. Cook's parents were ready to receive them with open arms.

The elopement and marriage is the culmination of a romance starting two months ago when Mr. Cook as a patient at Hope hospital, met Miss Cameron who called at the institution to visit one of her nurse friends, who by chance was attending Mr. Cook. The two were introduced and it was soon agreed to spring this surprise of yesterday.

Miss Cameron came to Fort Wayne a few years ago from her home in Ferguson, Kan., and after completing her training at the hospital, engaged in private nursing. She resided at 430 Old Fort place.

GIVE A HEARING ON WAGE DISPUTE

Board of Works and Federation Committee Hold a Session.

THE CITY HALL NOTES

Members of the board of works and the grievance committee of the Fort Wayne Federation of Labor went into session this afternoon at the city hall to discuss the wage dispute with the linenmen with a view of settling the difference brought about by a demand for increased pay and the cessation of work on extensions and improvements of the city commercial and lighting lines.

Just what the committee had to offer was not made public, but the board will maintain that losses on account of the flood will prevent for the present at least a higher wage scale than the one stipulated at a conference with the linenmen several weeks ago. Since this conference work has been stopped and only repairs are being cared for.

Notice was today sent by the board of public safety to the Fort Wayne and Northern Traction company that the ordinance requiring conductors to call the names of streets will be enforced, and that luxury will be met with arrests.

All new cars are being equipped with air, but no effort has been made to put them on the old ones and this point will probably not be insisted on, as pay-as-you-enter cars are being installed rapidly.

That no police matron will be appointed during the present administration has been practically settled and the committee from the socialist party is not likely to change the position of the board of public safety in this matter.

Chairman Payne, of the ways and means committee, have moved down to the front of the house on the republican side, fortified with the democratic bill and report of the earthenware and glassware schedule was resumed at the outset of today's session.

As the session proceeded amendments again began pouring in, but Mr. Underwood, with his large majority well in hand, defeated them one after another. The weary debate was relieved by a row between Representatives Hamilton, republican, of Michigan, and Representative Hardie, democrat, of Texas, over Angora goats and their duty, that set the house into roars of laughter. Standing on each side of the main aisle the two members shouted at one another, shook fists and forefingers, argued in a two man chorus, but their words were drowned in the uproar. The bill, however, was not affected.

A lively fight was vainly waged by the republicans against the increase of duty on Ferro-Manganese in the metal schedule, as being in the interest of the United States steel corporation. "Its sole purpose," said Representative Mann, "is to aid and comfort the monopoly in competition with the independents."

Representative Palmer, of Pennsylvania, in charge of the schedule, emphatically denied that contention.

CITY SHOULD OWN ITS RIVER BANKS

visited points along the Maumee and St. Mary's river and their observations will be included in the general report to be submitted under the direction of the secretary of war concerning actual conditions in this part of the country.

After realizing the tremendous damage done by high water in the middle west, especially Indiana and Ohio, the secretary of war appointed a board of eight members, all of them engineers or experts, and Messrs. Brownell and Hodges have been assigned to the territory affected by the Maumee river. Major Brownell is also a member of the board of army engineers appointed some time ago to investigate the feasibility of the proposed waterway from Toledo to Chicago, from a commercial standpoint.

Major Brownell, in addressing the local committee, declared that the city should get control of its river banks at the earliest possible date. He said this is necessary as it offers the city a change to any of the several methods that might be used in remedying the present conditions. It would give the city the power to stop illegal dumping into the streams and forming obstructions.

Among other things he recommended deepening and widening the river channels, removing the obstructions and straightening the beds of the streams. He also declared that the obstructions at the mouth of the St. Mary's river should be removed if the people ever hope to get permanently away from high water disaster here.

Major Brownell declared that the streams passing through Fort Wayne have too many obstructions and that the bridge piers are too close together. He also said that the streams should be straightened in order to relieve the flow of the currents. The city should find the maximum flow off below the city along the Maumee in its work of relief, and as a city, controlling the river banks, should use a free hand in the best possible plan offered.

In closing he said that the board of which he is a member will be delighted to pass upon any plan or acts of plans offered for the relief of Fort Wayne and the surrounding territory. He also recommended that the state should have a supervisor of the erection of structures which tend to obstruct river flow.

This morning the two engineers made a trip about the county and flooded districts of the city. They were accompanied by Mayor Jesse Grice, City Engineer Frank M. Randall, Engineer A. J. Grosvenor and O. B. Wiley, county bridge supervisor. At the close of his talk Major Brownell was accorded a vote of thanks by the committee.

CANNOT FIND RELATIVES

No Response to News of Drowning of J. F. Cunningham.

An unsuccessful effort is being made to locate relatives of J. Frank Cunningham, who was drowned Monday night in Funk's ditch in the west end of the city. It was thought yesterday that his wife resided in East Chicago, but all attempts to locate her have failed. Workmen at the Rolling mills who were associates of the dead man think he has relatives in Canada, and local authorities are trying to communicate with somebody who knows the man. The body will be taken care of by the local union of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin workers of which he was a member in good standing.

Saloon Advocates Win Bitter Contest in Kosciusko County.

IS CUT DOWN FROM 64

Warsaw, Ind., April 30.—Washington township, Kosciusko county, in which is located the town of Piercetown, voted "wet" yesterday. The majority for the saloons was 3, as compared with 64 two years ago.

The vote was the largest ever cast in the township and the fight was a bitter one. The "drys" carried two of the three precincts. The vote was as follows: First precinct, "wets" 114, "drys" 65; Second precinct, "wets" 71, "drys" 112; Third precinct, "wets" 85, "drys" 91.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN WORK.

Local Option Campaign in Danville Reaches White Heat.

Danville, Ind., April 30.—Interest in the local option campaign has reached white heat. The "wets" have a tight organization and are working quietly, but effectively. The temperance folk have enlisted the women and children in the fight and at a mass meeting the women adopted resolutions calling on every voter to "vote against the saloons and for the home." Sunrise prayer meetings will be held Saturday morning and lunch and coffee will be served free to voters by the women. They will also use hacks to haul voters to the polls.

"DRYS" WIN BY 128: Majority in Sullivan More Than Double That of 1911.

Sullivan, Ind., April 30.—This city will remain in the "dry" column for two more years. The temperance folk were victors in every ward of the city in the local option election yesterday, their majority being 128. Two years ago the city voted "dry" by 59. The majority of wards yesterday was: First, 16; Second, 41; Third, 71. The election was quiet and the vote much lighter than was anticipated, considering the pre-election interest taken.

"I Wouldn't Be a Judge," Declares Miss Andrews
After First Visit to a Court.

MISS PAULINE ANDREWS.

Pauline Andrews, 1312 First avenue west, Seattle, Wash., doesn't know a thing about law. She doesn't know much about lawyers or judges, or prosecuting attorneys or prisoners, or criminology. She's not a student of psychology, social science, penology or criminology. She is just an average girl. Recently she visited a courtroom for the first time in her life. She watched Judge Ronald on the bench while four prisoners were called up for sentence. Miss Andrews gives her impressions to The Sentinel readers in the following article.

BY PAULINE ANDREWS.

I saw a man whose eyes were dulled, whose face was hard, whose years seemed to weigh heavily upon him, stand up for sentence before Judge Ronald this morning.

He was sentenced. He was condemned to be a boy again!

The judge's tremendous power has been employed to take the unappealing look from this man's eyes, to remove the stone-hardness from this man's features.

For the man who stood up before Judge Ronald was only a boy. He was 17 years old, though you would never believe it. The juvenile records, however, show positively just how old Ralph C. Simons is.

"You are sentenced to the reformatory at Monroe," said Judge Ronald; "for a term of two to twenty years, and it is the order of the court that during your confinement at the reformatory, you shall not be permitted to associate with anyone over the age of 18."

Ralph Simons is to be a boy again!

Judge Simons discovered the hope of Ponce de Leon, the fountain of youth, at least in Ralph Simons' case. But it didn't seem to make Judge Ronald unusually happy.

I felt sorry for Judge Ronald. I would not want to be a judge for all the gifts and possessions in the world. The responsibility is tremendous. It is awesome. Just think how the judge's hand bears so vitally upon the destinies of people. Just think of the terrible effect a judge's mistaken judgment must mean!

Ralph Simons was a boy prematurely grown old. I agreed perfectly with Judge Ronald. I think his decision was excellent.

But here is the case of Henry K. Paris. He is seven years older than Simons. He gave his age as 24. But he is really the boy of the two. He, too, committed forgery. But he was out for a good time, hired a taxi and piled up a bill for $21. He was drunk, he said.

And he wrote out a check for $25. He didn't have the money. He got the taxi ride and $4 in change. And for that he must pay the price of one to twenty years in the reformatory! Simons never blinked an eyelash when sentenced. Paris was on the verge of tears.

This time I can not agree with Judge Ronald. The Paris boy was never before in trouble. I would have suspended his sentence and given him another chance.

Be a judge of the superior court! It's a fearful position. Judge Ronald had an uncomfortable five minutes of it this morning. I know. Pearl Turner, a young woman, 18, mother of a baby, was up for sentence on a grand larceny charge. She is the girl who was said to have been hypnotized by a man who used her as an accomplice in robbing homes of people where she engaged herself as a domestic.

Judge Ronald did not want to send her to the penitentiary. But he thought he had to, and he pored over the law books, and called upon the deputy prosecuting attorneys, and finally they decided he could suspend her sentence.

"Your sentence is from one to fifteen years in the penitentiary," said the judge, "but it is suspended if you go home to your husband or your parents and stay with them."

Suppose the judge couldn't find that the law gave him the right to suspend her sentence?

No. I don't want to be a judge.

WILL BUY LOWER CALIFORNIA.

Promoter Tells of $25,000,000 Deal and Annexation Scheme.

San Diego, Cal., April 30.—Asserting that $25,000,000 has been pledged for the purchase of Lower California from the Mexican government by a group of American capitalists, W. J. McGinnis, a property owner at Punta Banda, across the bay from Ensenada, Lower California, today said the deal would be consummated soon and annexation by the United States would be agitated immediately. He says the plan was considered favorably by the late President Madero, but that some difficulty with the Huerta regime is feared. He declined to name the capitalists involved. Mexican Consul Leon Gomez said that before such a deal could be transacted the constitution of Mexico would have to be amended and a vote of the people in Lower California taken.

GOVERNMENT DEFENDS INDIAN.

Contents Redskins Have Right to Kill Wild Game.

Grand Rapids, Minn., April 30.—The right of an Indian to kill game in or out of season is involved in the appeal of the game law violation taken from justice to district court by a representative of the federal government. Mike Fairbanks, Indian, killed a deer and was fined $25 or thirty days in prison. Here the United States intervened in the person of W. H. Warren, deputy Indian agent for the northern districts, and gave notice of appeal, furnishing bonds for the defendant. When the action comes up in the higher court one of the federal attorneys will appear for the Indian and make a test case on behalf of the whole tribe. It will be urged that under the real stipulations the Indians have retained their ancient privilege of killing game at any time.

WEALTHY MAN ON ROAD GANG.

Prisoner, Worth $100,000, Violated Alabama Liquor Law.

Mobile, Ala., April 30.—Jacob J. Hauser, although worth in his own right money and property to the value of nearly $100,000, must serve three months at hard labor on the county road gang here with the worst kind of vagabonds for violating the prohibition law of Alabama. He was convicted of selling beer and whisky in the dry territory of Mobile county, although the city not two miles away from where he resides is wet territory, there being fifty-two saloons. Hauser fought the case through four courts, the supreme court denying his petition for a rehearing yesterday. In this state a second conviction for selling liquor means hard labor.

MI-O-NA A SPECIFIC FOR STOMACH ILLS

Many people treat their house, dogs and other things in which they are interested with more thoughtfulness than their stomachs.

We take precautions against fire and other damage to property, but what care or thought do we give our bodies? Almost none! Somehow we have an idea that our moral frame will stand any abuse heaped upon it, so we go on tormenting it until it becomes defiant and rebels.

A little fire bell in the system always rings to sound the warning. We have an ache, pain, a bad taste in the mouth, or something out of the ordinary. What is the cause? Just this—been eating too much, too fast, or something that the overloaded and tired digestive organs refuse to handle in the natural way.

Be prepared for these warnings. Mi-o-na Tablets are a specific for stomach ills. Get a box today—always keep them in the house—carry them when traveling—take them at the first warning of stomach distress.

If you have that uncomfortable feeling of fullness, if your stomach is upset, tongue coated, head aches, you feel dizzy at times, and are irritable and depressed, beware—you are warned that the stomach and digestive organs are in rebellion. Do not delay. Take Mi-o-na—at once—immediate relief is certain. Remember—if not benefited Mi-o-na coats nothing—always sold on money back plan at Meyer Bros. Co. and drugists everywhere. 50c a large box.

MEASURE YOUR TRUNK.

Excess Baggage Charge if it is Over 45 Inches in Length.

Chicago, April 30.—Forty-five inches is the longest trunk that may be carried as free baggage on railways in the United States after today. Also the new rules drawn on the trunk with bulging side or bottom designed so that it must stand in a certain position so the gowns and hats inside will travel right side up. It may be some time, however, before the "freaky" trunks can be refused. Notice is required to reject lawfully. Five pounds for each inch over 45 inches is the rate of excess charge that will be levied under the new baggage rules.

ONE KILLED; TWO INJURED.

Coal Gas Explodes Beneath Brick Cupola at Marion.

Other men in the plant were not hurt and these men chanced to be standing near the cupola when the coal gas exploded. No other damage was done at the plant.

Tomorrow is the last day for changes in the new telephone directory.

"Let Him Have His Squaw," Says Miss Sullivan; Who Has Changed Her Mind.

MISS MADELINE SULLIVAN.

Chicago, April 30.—The romance of the sheepskin chap, the sombrero and a swarthy-skinned North American red-skin is all over for beautiful Miss Madeline Sullivan, Chicago society girl who made the eyes of "swellheads" bulge two years ago when she tried to run away with a real live Indian.

The fact was made patent when Miss Sullivan laughingly commented on the news that her schoolgirl ideal was about to marry a squaw—Miss Medicine Top. Not two years ago it took the combined forces of her mother and the federal authorities to prevent her from running away with and marrying Chief Plenty Hawk, richest of all the Crow Indians. She was in earnest all right then, she admits. But now it looks like a great, big, foolish girl's prank.

Sipping her tea and looking the proverbial society maid, Miss Sullivan, who has just returned from a plunge in eastern society and its round of ceaseless gaiety, read the announcement of Plenty Hawk's proposed marriage at Sheridan, Wyo.

"Really I had forgotten all about that childish escapade," she said. "So plenty Hawk is to be married. I am glad of it. He was a good Indian. But he can have his squaw. "Poor old Plenty Hawk. I was a wild flower then. I thought his hills and forests, his horses and blankets were all there was in the world. I liked to sit on a horse and gallop away, make the dust fly and shoot in the air. "Now I am a hot-house plant!"

AUTOMOBILE WAS BURNED.

Scott Hughes' Car Damaged to the Amount of $500.

While Scott Hughes, of this city, was returning home from Decatur late Tuesday evening his automobile caught fire and was damaged to the extent of $500 before the flames could be extinguished. The car was badly damaged and the body was destroyed, leaving only the running gears, chassis and motor. Fortunately the blaze was put out before reaching the gasoline tank.

The fire was first noticed by Mr. Hughes while he was about six miles south of the city near the line of the Fort Wayne & Springfield Interurban company. A car lapped by and the train crew assisted Mr. Hughes in extinguishing the blaze.

FINDS MAN UNDER HER BED AT LAST

Dream of Years Comes True to Mary Garden, Star in Opera.

THEN BANISHES HIM

New York, April 30.—Many high priced singers sailed on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. of the North German Lloyd line. It was the biggest sailing of op-eratic stars ever recorded. On the pier there were throngs to bid goodspeed to departing friends, among them many Italians, who had given Caruso a banquet last night and then carried him aboard ship and put him to bed.

And there was Mary Garden of the Chicago Opera company. She wore a gown of blue, with a white stole about her neck, white spats and white kid gloves. She told the ship news reporters all about her plans for the summer—and wouldn't they come to her state-room and she would tell them some more? They all accepted the invitation, and then—O, horror! the state-room was filled with smoke.

Dream of Years Comes True! Miss Garden stamped her foot and with some fervor called a steward and demanded to know what such a thing meant. An investigation revealed the fact that the smoke was coming from under her bed. Further investigation disclosed the fact that it was coming from a cigar, and that a man was smoking the cigar.

"A man under my bed!" exclaimed the radiant Mary. "O! What an ardent admirer. Absolutely stowed himself away to be near me. Isn't it beautiful? All my life I have dreamed of such a moment, ever since I was a girl—and that isn't so very long ago, is it boys?—that I would some time find a man under my bed. And now it has come true. O, this is delightful!"

Mary Looks—"Take Him Away."

All this while they were dragging the man out. He was a portly man. He was fat, and he had a red face, and his hair was tousled and his clothing was all mussed. He had gone aboard with the Caruso party. Caruso's state-room is two doors below that of Miss Garden, and her door being open, the banqueter rolled in. The ship had a list to port and he rolled under the bed. He was perfectly happy.

Miss Garden took one look at him. "Take him away!" she cried. "Feed him to the sharks!" They took him ashore and handed him over to the admirers of Caruso who wanted to know where the tenor was.

Hold-Up Man at Indianapolis Settles Without Trouble.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 30.—After getting the "drop" on the bartender and a single customer in a saloon within half a block of the Union station here

When he received the money he ran from the place.

BAHLE TRIO CONCERT. Appreciative Audience Enjoys Chamber Music and Solists.

The second concert of the season's series by the Bahle Trio, Messrs. George and Gaston BaHle and Nelski Zedler, given last evening at the Majestic, brought out many admirers of chamber music and the audience which was large, gave unqualified approval and close attention during the entire program. The Trio was assisted by Mrs. Naomi Nazor, a young soprano of Chicago, whose fresh, sweet and mellow voice, clear diction and prepossessing appearance at once appealed to the audience. Miss Nazor appeared twice on the program and responded to both times with an encore number. Miss Helene Spindler played her accompaniments. The other soloist of the evening was Nelski Zedler, cellist of the Trio. His number was a Spanish dance by Puppier and the abundance of tone quality, vitality and rhythm as well as technical equipment demanded, were more than displayed by Mr. Zedler whose performance was beautiful. He played a work of entirely different character in response to the applause and the audience was again appreciative of the virile tone and style Mr. Zedler displays. George Bahle played Mr. Zedler's accompaniments.

The Trio opened with the Peer Gynt Suite which they played with fine orchestral effects and poetic feeling. Of noteworthy beauty was the second movement. The dance movement was a trifle slower than it is often played and many felt that the change in tempo was more in keeping with the rest of the suite.

The Trio also played a Norwegian dance by Grieg and "Scherzo" by Beethoven, in faultless style. But the great work of the program was a rather stupendous trio by Sinding, opus 84, to be exact. The program notes stated that Grieg is dead, is unquestionably the chief representative of Norwegian music, that this particular trio is written with many aims at orchestra effects and is a great mechanical difficulty; that delicate tone painting and luxuriantly flowing rhythm are chief characteristics of this beautiful and powerful composition. All this was manifest to the audience. Whom the work was entirely new. Its technical difficulties were surprising, especially for the piano where there was no cessation of rapid and exhaustive demands of that instrument to supply the orchestra effects to the beautiful solos and duets for the violin and cello. The reading of the work was a splendid one, intellectually and musically. The Trio have been studying the Sinding work for months and they have surmounted its difficulties and attained an ensemble of artistic interpretation that commanded the re-

"DON'T GET THE HABIT OF RUNNING TO THE DOCTOR." FROM LOV. COUSIN WINNIE.

MY DEAR ELEANOR—

So you are not feeling well? I notice you speak often of this in writing to me, and you go on to say that you "have been to see the doctor." You may really sometimes need a pill, but, dear girl, stop this habit of running to the doctor. Your mother used to call in the physician often because you urged it, but if your father could pay for this that was his affair. I am tempted to emphasize the foolishness of running to a doctor, since it is seldom recognized as a blamable thing. Yet it is a serious drain on the family income. It is bad enough for a husband to have to pay medicine bills when occasion requires it.

I know one young married man who in a fit of avarice to his wife in an evening gathering in bad weather lest she take cold and go to bed and make another doctor's bill. The husband is far from heartless; he simply cannot afford it. He argues to himself that the last bill should be paid before another is made.

There are many women who regard it as an added habit of social prestige—this running continually to see a doctor. As a rule, this is done out of town to further increase personal importance. I can think of one family where the father does not know how he is going to pay his house rent, whose wife trails constantly to the doctor, and an outside doctor at that, on behalf of one or another of the children.

With modern short cuts to cooking and time, as well as step-saving equipment, the average wife can dispense with other aid than her own strength. Therefore, her work ought to keep her well. Except for the heavy part, this economy is almost necessary for a young couple, no matter how each may separately have shaven off before at father's expense. A contented mind and sufficient exercise can help keep a wife well, if she does not begin as an invalid—which you certainly are not.

If you cannot make yourself prominent without going to a doctor's, then remain in obscurity. But I am sure, dear, that you are far too sensible to need this advice. As for house-keeping, you know what is required of you, anyway. Yours lovingly, spect and admiration of the audience in no small degree.

COUSIN WINNIE.

HELP YOURSELF WHEN ILL.

Help Others and That Will Act as a Charm to Help You.

By a Physician.

Think of somebody else's headache! There's more in this simple suggestion than many people believe. It is simply the old philosophy of drowning your own ill in the greater troubles of another.

It works like a charm, nine times out of ten. It applies equally well to your earthly possessions, your station in life, your ideals of happiness.

You may have the most pained body in the world; the most severe cold ever known; the least to be thankful for, until Well, until you take the thought and the time to look around about you and find someone else who is much worse than you are, and whose reason for smiling is several shades less distinct.

There's always a silver lining to the darkest cloud. The philosophy of life and of health is often merely the will and the way to turn the cloud inside out.

When you're down in the dumps with your blues for chief companion and health with all its happiness seems to have fluttered away, look over the edge of your endeavoring, self-dig "blues" cave, and see how much better you are than the other fellow just down the street a step or two.

LARGE AUDIENCE PLEASSED.

Schlatter's Orchestra and Soloists Gave Interesting Program.

Both soloists, Mrs. Florence Robinson Cleary, who has a good contralto voice, and Kenneth Rose, violinist, who were heard in connection with a concert given by the C. C. Schlatter orchestra, with C. E. Richard directing, were featured much enjoyed by a large audience at the First M. E. church last evening. The entire program was well given and Mr. Rose, who is from Indianapolis, displayed a beautiful tone and much ease in bowing besides an evident feeling for expression, all of which were manifested in the Minniebaker selection and in a group of numbers later in the program. Mrs. Cleary's well modulated contralto is familiar to many audiences of the city and her songs were all well received. Miss Cate, of Warsaw, and Miss Benish L. McCrea of this city, were the capable accompanists of the evening. The orchestra did very good work indeed and the players were a credit to themselves and to the director, Mr. Richard, whose ability and devotion to his work has long been recognized.

STEINWAY PIANO.

The Steinway Grand piano used by the Bahle Trio has been given to the Majestic theater by the F. C. Spiegel Piano company, who are the northern Indiana representatives for this world renowned instrument.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"Bunty Pulls the Strings" to Play Return Engagement at Majestic.

Fort Wayne theater goers are to have another opportunity to see the famous Scotch comedy, "Bunty Pulls the Strings," this season. The play has been looked by the management of the Majestic theater for a return engagement of two performances, Saturday afternoon and night, May 3.

The company coming to Fort Wayne is that which played "Bunty" for several months at the Princess Theater, Chicago. In it are Miss Molly McIntyre, William Lemox, Nelson Ramsey, Jean Burnett and several others who played with the New York "Bunty" company at various times during the two years' run of the play there. All of the members of the company are from Scotland. William A. Brady recruited them from the leading theaters of Glasgow, Edinburgh and London. The latter city, of course, is not in Scotland, though it is reputed to have more Scotchmen than Glasgow, more Irishmen than Dublin, and so on. A number of its Scotchmen are on the stage.

Miss McIntyre plays the part of Bunty. Miss McIntyre is one of those who comes from London. She is, however, an inveterate lassie, and a mighty hottie one, too. She plays the role of Bunty as she did with the New York company for three months last season when she first came over from Scotland, then went to Chicago to play Bunty there. Since beginning its road tour "Bunty" has played such cities as St. Louis, Cincinnati, Kansas City, Detroit and others of similar size and everywhere Miss McIntyre and the entire cast have been receiving the same warm measure of praise that was accorded them in Chicago and New York.

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" Monday Evening.

For rush of action and intensity of surprise, Eugene Walter's dramatization of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is without dramatic competitor. It is a vivid visualization of the most widely read romance of the day, enhanced by one of the most artistic and realistic productions ever made, a series of pictures of youth—dewy, virgin youth in the rugged frame of natural scenery. A story of primitive love, it overshadows, in its stage presentation of tenderness and passion, the story of the June of Mr. Fox's delightful book. You must see June on the stage with her foolish obstinacy and general impulsiveness, wonderfully, attractive as she is portrayed.

The play comes to the Majestic Monday, May 5, for a return engagement.

AT THE TEMPLE

"Alma Jimmie Valentine" is a thrilling and interesting play. It had a great run in New York and other cities but it remained for Wright Huntington and his stock company to put the play on in this city for the pleasure of people who love to see a good story well acted. And "Alma Jimmie Valentine" is a good story, there's no doubt of that. Moreover, it is acted so well that it is especially noteworthy. The cast is very good indeed and the role of Jimmie by Frank M. Thomas displays a sense for acting and a skill in character work that is surprising and delightful to witness. He makes Jimmie a live and possible young man, either as a crook or as a man who would be square with his fellowman and himself. The other roles are ably carried, especially those taken by Mr. Huntington, Miss Gerald, Earl Lee, George Conner, Guy Durrell and Duncan Penwarden. Two children make good in a short scene and speak their lines so distinctly and apparently so understand their work that it causes wonder as to what brought it about, splendid training or natural ability, or possibly just some of each. But it is the play that makes principally for the genuine pleasure of the audience that have been increasing in numbers at every performance since the opening one the first of the week. However, Mr. Huntington has surrounded himself with the best stock company he has ever played in Fort Wayne. He has an attractive role as the detective and plays it unlike anything he had previously done here, which also makes for the superior quality of the performance in general.

Beginning tomorrow's matinee the company plays "The Deep Purple."

Petite Grace Cameron Describes Various Kinds of Goo-Goo Eyes.

"Goo-Goo eyes? Yes, I have heard of them. In fact I have both seen and felt them," said pretty petite Grace Cameron, now at the Empress, the brilliant young vaudeville star who has taken America and England by storm during the past few years and gives promise of holding both countries willing subjects at her feet for years to come. "But for the life of me," she added, "I could never tell just why they call them goo-goo eyes."

"How many kinds of goo-goo eyes have you seen?" was asked.

"Three that I remember well," replies the favorite. "In the first place there is the desperately in love gaze, which tries to catch and hold an actress, and I guess everybody else, for that matter, spellbound."

"Another kind of goo-goo eyes that I have encountered are made by drawing down the lids at the corners of the eyes, so as to make them laugh, at the same time accompanying the performance with an abbreviated smile. This class of goo-goo eyes is supposed to kill at first sight, and in some cases I have known them to do so, yet I am pleased to say that I never fell in the net. I have met this species of eyes in the theaters, and on the street, and I believe that they are the worst attempt to flirt that I know of. While they might affect a silly girl they would have no effect on a woman with a reputation at stake."

"Then there is another eye that plays a big part in the life and success of every artist on the stage, but I hardly think you can call them goo-goo eyes. The moment you see them from behind the foot lights you know that their owner, although perhaps an entire stranger, is your friend, and will show proper appreciation of your talent. I have gone on the stage before now when the audience was like a block of ice; they all sat there like graven images."

"Then it was that I knew I needed a friendly eye in the audience. On such occasions I never lost any time in finding the eyes of appreciation and when once found if I was applauded after I had rendered a difficult number I nodded slightly to show that I had seen what was going on. The next time I came on the stage I knew I had a friend, and that one friend would make more, so I turned to other portions of the house to try to make new conquests; sometimes I would pick out a man and sometimes a woman, but I tried to scatter them; the result generally was that when the curtain went down my friends on the stage would wonder how I received so much applause. But it was easy, I merely studied my audience just as I studied my part on the stage."

AT THE JEFFERSON

Tonight is the last opportunity you will have of seeing the wonderful production of "Satan." Thousands have seen it and all expressed themselves in the highest terms as to the excellence of this picture. Thursday comes an important special in two reels entitled "The Rise of Officer No. 174," with King Baggott as No. 174. This picture has to do with the police department of New York city and depicts how an honest officer can rise to the top. Friday a thrilling romance, "The Madcap Countess," in three reels, will be the feature. Among the many thrills are a ride on the giant Loop the Loop that is death-defying; nerve-racking feats of hurdle jumping; 14 thoroughbred; in fact, this production fairly bristles with action from start to finish.

AT THE LYRIC.

The Lyric is presenting the Thambousser special in two reels, "For Another's Sin," today. It tells a story of the man who has erred and paid the prison penalty, and finds to his horror that a friend is treading the self-same downward path. The friend has a family and a future, the ex-convict has neither, and he persuades the friend to allow him to take the blame and the punishment. Tomorrow's important announcement includes the great humorous picture, "That Rag-Time Band" and Friday, the big Bruno two-reeler, "Retrospection," will be the attraction.

THE BEST BREAD PUDDING MADE

(By Caroline Coe.)

Butter four slices of bread, press into the shape of the pudding pan and into the bottom. Beat two eggs light, add one scant cup of white sugar, pinch of salt and vanilla to suit taste. Add the eggs and sugar, one pint of milk, stir well. Turn over bread and set aside.

Hard Sauce for Bread Pudding.

One tablespoon of butter and one cup of powdered sugar. Place butter in bowl. Mix until smooth with wooden spoon and add sugar little at a time, beating or creaming for several minutes before adding more sugar. When all the sugar has been added beat until it is creamy, and smooth, set aside to cool. Serve in square blocks or spoonful on each dish of pudding. Sauce may be flavored with any flavoring.

Petticoats Pretty and Popular.

Petticoats are such delectable things that it is hard to see how the heart of any woman on earth could resist them. We all know that they are not what they were, fluffy and frilly and voluminous, billows of foam for our little feet or rustling consequential things which it was the dream of every girl's life to attain.

But today they have their own special charm, clinging and intimate, and such a thing as an ugly petticoat is never to be seen. It makes one shiver to recall the flannel lined noires on the Thibet stripes which respectable matrons wore in the nineties, for even so late they still survived in all their solid ugliness.

Now it is all the softest, the most graceful stuffs that we choose for our underskirts—hideous word beloved of the underclothing department. Nobody sees these pretty things, for we never lift our frocks but we have the joy of possessing them and a subtle instinct that divines their place in the toilets of other women. Shanting is a favorite medium, plain or flowered, and figured satin makes a quaint little "petticoat" in plain navy with side panels of brilliant pattern and a deep felt skirt.

Petticoats of all, however, are the new silk crepes—you may crumple them up just anyhow and treat them with no sort of respect and they won't resent it; you cannot crush or harm them, though you may soil their delicate colors. And really one doesn't know which model is the smartest and compromises by purchasing a mustard crepe seen with embroidery in self colors and another of green chamois with flaunting motifs of the embroidery sequestered Bulgarian.

The petticoat may match the gown or it may contrast, or it may have no relation to it at all in these days, when even the midweek day does not reveal its secrets.

THE THREE-DECKER.

Fashion never quite neglects the evening tier skirt, more particularly for the present season is that the various tiers rise a little in front, dropping slightly toward the back. This does away with the straight line round the body which detracts so much from the height of the wearer.

A specimen of the gown is in soft satin in a tone of green like that of the tulip foliage. Each flounce is bordered with gold lace mounted on gold net and daintily jeweled with emerald and gold crystals. The decu which also forms the sleeves is trimmed in exactly the same fashion.

A Dainty Gown

A dainty lingerie gown is made of skirting embroidery, with a ruffle of net underneath the scooped. This skirt is two yards around the bottom and gathered around the waist line, which is very low. A plain, old-fashioned baby waist, made of the embroidery with three-quarter "set in" sleeves, makes this little frock very quaint and charming. About the waist is a narrow belt of dark blue faille ribbon, with one end looped under the draping in the front of the skirt. With this costume is worn a lingerie sun hat, lined underneath with navy blue crepon.

NOT ENOUGH MEN TO DO THE WORK

All Fort Wayne Shops Are Crippled by the Scarcity of Laborers.

STAKING OFF THE DEPOT GROUNDS

Wabash Preparing for Important Improvement in Fort Wayne.

The output of the industrial plants of Fort Wayne would be from 15 to 20 per cent greater than at present were it possible to get all the laborers needed. Work in the railway shops would also be much heavier if laborers were more plentiful. And the scarcity grows with each day and has reached a point where it is a most serious matter. It is safe to say that 500 good laborers are badly needed in Fort Wayne today. Some of the big manufacturing establishments are advertising for help in the Chicago, the Cincinnati, the Indianapolis and Toledo papers, but so far the results have been anything but satisfactory; in fact, those advertisements have not been the means of bringing any laborers here so far as can be learned. One large employer of labor is about to establish free bunk houses on the premises in the hopes that it may induce a number of foreign laborers to apply for employment and remain with the firm. This class go in parties and when they quit an employer all go together. This was the case at the Pennsylvania car shops yesterday, when a party of eight laborers unexpectedly resigned. And none applied for the positions they vacated. The Pennsylvania company—and the other big employers of labor for that matter—are offering steady employment and as a rule it is work within doors where rain does not interfere with it and the laborer will never be called upon to lose time because of the weather. Wages, too, are higher than they were a year or two ago, but as a rule not as high as paid temporarily for work out doors, where the laborer must lose time now and then on account of the weather.

VANDALIA TO TOLEDO.

Has Arranged to Send Trains Into That City June 1.

According to the Toledo Blade, the Vandalia will be running passenger and freight trains into Toledo June 1. That paper last night said:

"Final details of plans of the Vandalia for entering Toledo, except as to passenger train schedule, were worked out Monday when officials of the Pennsylvania came here to confer with Division Freight Agent J. M. Steenberg, Division Superintendent Otto Schroll, Central System Superintendent Hamilton and other local officials of the Pennsylvania Lines. In the group of visiting officials were A. M. Scheyer, general manager; F. T. Zisch, chief engineer, both of the Pennsylvania Lines west, and G. W. Davis, general freight agent, and F. L. Campbell, division superintendent of the Michigan division of the Vandalia Lines."

The Vandalia line extends to Butler, Ind., and a deal has been made with the Wabash to run Vandalia trains from that city to Toledo over the Wabash road. This route will be the shortest between Toledo and St. Louis, the Wabash and the Clover Leaf each being six miles longer. The distance over the Vandalia will be 448 miles; it is 454 over the Wabash and the Clover Leaf.

STAKING OFF THE GROUND.

Engineers Here to Survey the Wabash Depot Site.

Engineer Curtis, of St. Louis, and some assistants arrived in the city this morning and immediately began the work of surveying the ground and setting the stakes for the new passenger station will the removal of the old freight house to the west side of Harrison street. Later in the week the Continental Construction company will send a lot of men and equipment here to remove the old freight house and work will be in full blast on the improvements early next week. Included in the improvement will be the installation of a water heating plant just east of the present depot building for purifying the water before it passes into the tanks at the station to be fed into the tanks of locomotives. The site of the treating plant is now occupied by some shanties, one of which is used as a car inspector's storehouse and office, and these are to be removed at once. The Wabash will push the improvement work in this city with all possible energy when once it commences.

ADDITION TO FACTORY HERE.

General Electric Company Will Manufacture Large Lamps.

Equipment is being installed on the second floor of the General Electric company at Holman and Clinton streets, for the establishment of what will be known as "The Fort Wayne Special Factory." Preparations are being made for the manufacture of all sizes of Mazda lamps above 100 watts, and the largest size to be made here will be 1,000 watts. At the present time only 15, 25 and 40 watt Mazda lamps are made here.

According to A. B. Stetson, who is to be the superintendent of the new factory, the increased output of the local factory will require two hundred extra employees, and 5,000 of the large lamps are to be turned out daily. This will be a very material addition to the business at the local plant, and will give Fort Wayne industries an excellent boost as this will be the only factory which manufactures the large size Mazda lamps in the middle west. Most of the lamps above one hundred watts are now made in Harrison, N. J., by the General Electric company. The local plant is being established here in order to better serve the western trade of the company. It is said that the new special plant will be put into operation some time during the coming summer, and the chimneys has just begun to arrive in the city. The old Mazda factory which is situated in the rear of the main factory, facing Montgomery street, will remain in operation, and the small size lamps will continue to be manufactured there.

PAID OUT OVER $35,500,000.

Pennsylvania Relief Disbursements Reach Big Proportions.

The relief department of the Pennsylvania Railroad System during the month of March paid in benefits to members of their families $202,624.32—a daily average of almost $6,800—according to the regular monthly report issued today. This brings the total distribution since the funds for the lines east and west of Pittsburgh were established up to the thirty-five and one-half million dollar mark.

On the lines east of Pittsburgh and Erie in the month of March the payments in benefits to the families of members who died amounted to $66,546.54, while to members incapacitated for work they amounted to $124,443.28. The total payments on the lines east of Pittsburgh since the relief fund was established in 1886 have amounted to $25,088,630.03.

In March the relief fund of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh paid out a total of $71,634.50, of which $20,000 were for the families of members who died, and $51,634.50 for members unable to work. The sum of $9,766,643.03 represents the total payments of the relief fund of the Pennsylvania lines west since it was established in 1889.

ANOTHER CANDIDATE OUT.

E. G. Ludwig in Race for Relief Representative.

E. G. Ludwig announces himself a candidate for member of the advisory board of the Pennsylvania Voluntary Relief association from the Western and the Terminal divisions. Mr. Ludwig is a passenger fireman on the division and is the first candidate from that branch of the service to seek election on the board for a number of years. He is the fourth to announce his candidacy, the others being Samuel N. Taylor, train dispatcher, of Fort Wayne; Harry G. Cook, clerk in the Chicago freight yards, and Thomas F. Leydon, clerk in the Chicago freight house. John J. E. Hebert, a machinist engaged in special work at the round house, is the present member of the board.

OVER THE LINE ON HANDCAR.

Guy Scott and A. A. Wirth Inspecting Western Division.

Division Engineer Guy Scott and Supervising Engineer A. A. Wirth are making an inspection trip over the Western division of the Pennsylvania, traveling on a handcar. They commenced the trip Monday, but were driven in by the storm and took a fresh start east yesterday morning. The inspection will consume three days. Mr. Wirth has headquarters at Pittsburgh.

NEW FACES IN OPENING GAME

The outfield is made up of two men who have never played in Fort Wayne or the Central league until the present season and a third one new here several times last year. Wheeling and one of the crew that kept the champions of this year guessing about winning that pennant.

Everything Ready for Game.

If Jupiter Pluvius will do as well as Claude H. Varnell has done there will be an opening under conditions that will insure the presence of a big crowd. There is always local pride in comparative figures and Fort Wayne has generally tried and frequently succeeded in turning out more people to the first game than any other city on the circuit.

Two weeks ago the Fort Wayne base ball park consisted of one open-faced outfield, a badly damaged diamond and outfield partially submerged, one set of collapsed bleachers and a nice site for a club house. It was discouraging but the owner set about the task of repairing the damage and at the same time guarding against future calamities of the same kind and the people who go down in their pockets for the opening conflict will find fences up, field and diamond in excellent condition, bleachers erected and the club house right where it ought to be.

This has taken some fast work and a big outlay of money.

The Youngest Manager.

Johnny Nee, the youngest base ball manager in captivity, will be here at the head of the Dayton club to supply the opposition in the first bout and it is likely that he will save Jack Compton for the fray. Jack's first start indicates that he is getting away in the same fashion that made him a real terror in the league for two years.

Just who will oppose him is a matter that the manager will have to solve. It may be decided to hold Tommy Atkins in reserve and send him against the Veterans, but Young made such an excellent showing in his defeat at Dayton that he may be the moundster.

Nee is carrying Rolla Sykes at first, Lohr at third and Martin at short.

Sykes played with Dayton several years ago and has been in the Southern league since and his partners at short and third are both new.

DeHaven and Wickland, of the outfield are known here and Shaw is the new man. Armstrong, first catcher of the club, was with it in 1912.

Just Like Other Days.

In so far as the opening ceremonies are concerned there will be little to distinguish the day from any other in base ball circles. The parade was declared off for very good reasons and the men will go to the club house on their arrival, deposit the base ball belongings and then get ready for the battle of the afternoon.

In Tuttleweiler and Bashing the club evidently has a couple of valuable men and the start under adverse conditions indicates that Varnell has gotten together another aggregation that will be in the fight right along. He proposes to strengthen his pitching staff if he can find a couple of good men, although he will give the pitchers now on the club time to show whether or not they can deliver.

Hopes for Good Season.

"I think I will have a good season this year in spite of the bad start," said Owner Varnell today. "People here can be counted on to support a good club and while the flood made me a lot of expense, it affected everybody else in Fort Wayne the same way and I am taking my chances along with the others."

"Manager Burke has wired me that his wife has shown some improvement and he will probably join the club, as he can be of no service at home. I would like to see him in the opener and feel glad that conditions will admit of it. All we need is a bit of good weather and I am sure we will get the people at the first game."

LEAD LEAGUE IN OPENING BATTLE

Billikens Will Try to Take Final Argument on the Road.

ATKINS TO PITCH

Evansville, Ind., April 29.—Marcus Aurelius McLafferty, manager of the batting Billikens, and all of the men who have fought under his standard for the last three days, want to open the season at home in first place and for that reason the temporary pilot of the Evansville team, Bill Atkins, has been called to the scene of battle this afternoon to offer Tommy Atkins as the firing squad.

Four in seven would have satisfied the club under ordinary circumstances, but when the Veterans crimped the fond hopes of the Reapers and sent Fort Wayne to the top of the club standing a new desire was created in the minds of the Evansville fans. They wanted to see the Evansville team win a game and they wanted to see the Evansville team win a game.

Everybody is in good condition and full of ambition and certain of making a hard fight and a good showing in the campaign. As both teams have long trips ahead of them the game this afternoon was called half an hour earlier.

The Fort Wayne club will have been early this evening and if the team schedule worked out for them they will arrive at the Grand Rapids road at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Those of the Evansville patrons who like to see plenty of hard hitting left the park after the third inning with just one regret. Fort Wayne landed a new pitcher to fight for the home squad and carried off the victory. There was no kick on the batting as twenty-one safe drives for thirty-one bases was the record made by the Evansville team.

With Harry Fabrique in the discard Al Bashung was the first with a single and counted on Ray Johnson's double. Tutwiler came home with a single and Keener cleaned up with a rousing triple. Crum was extracted after he had passed McLafferty. He drew transportation to the Evansville road and was carried off by a car.

McLafferty scored a run with a sacrifice hit. Washburn's error on Bashung's grounder let Hopper over with the seventh run.

Two hits scored a run for Evansville in the second and Bashung drove Vallandigham in with a double after he had hit in the third. Barnes started a rally in the fifth and Tene and Inley followed with singles and Crum doubled, the inning netting four runs and Young went to the mound in the next. Two each in the eighth gave Evansville a chance but a pair for the visitors in the ninth clinched victory and first place for Fort Wayne.

UMPIRES REALLY ENJOY THE LIFE

Do Not Live Solitary Lives as People Generally Think.

FOND OF THE GAME

Chicago, April 29.—Umpires are supposed to be unhappy persons to live solitary lives.

This is the general impression that prevails among the fans. It was such an idea that suggested the title "For the Umpire is a Most Unhappy Man" to Bill Atkins, one of the writers of that erstwhile popular song.

Enthusiasts will go to a ball game, call the umpire all sorts of names in a loud tone of voice, and then exclaim to the next fellow: "Gee, I'd hate to be that umpire. He's certainly getting his, but he's always been somewhere else."

All of this is wrong. The umpire likes his work. Most of them prefer it to anything else.

The writer had a talk with Jack Sheridan on the coast two or three weeks ago. The veteran handler of the ball for the big league, although he has stoutly said he'd never umpire again, but he was at every one of the games of the White Sox played in San Francisco and in Chicago. He admitted the old fever was beginning to burn again—the old desire to be in the thick of things behind the plate.

"I had some mighty good times there," he said. "You don't hear any of the things that are said about the umpire. If you do hear them you soon get to pay attention to them. Of course the players talk pretty rough at times. But when a fellow has his heart and soul in a game you can overlook a lot of things. It's only when they become absolutely insulting that you have to use strenuous measures."

"After all, I've umpired behind some of the best teams in the league. The toughest of them all were the Baltimore Orioles when Kid Gleason, Hugh Jennings, John McGraw and the rest of that gang were there. I tell you what, an umpire earned his full salary during those games. But we got so we'd take it with the rest of the team and the rest of the gang."

Bill Evans is another umpire who is fond of the game. He is in love with the game. He is the type of an official who brings credit to the sport, and it's a good thing he still is young.

There are some umpires who can't seem to learn the hard way. One of these is Bush, a chap who was let out by President Taft last season because he got in the way of a ball tossed by a giant during the Cub series at New York. Bush is in the Coast league now and seems to be for a long time.

WAGNER IS PAID MORE THAN CLUB

Big German Pulls Down More Than Old Reds Received.

THE SALARY ACCOUNT

Forty-four years ago the first professional ball club in the world was organized. It was the famous Cincinnati Reds, the pioneer paid baseball club, in whose existence the great national game, as it exists today, had its origin.

In 1869 this club played through the entire season, from March 15 till November 15, and never lost a game. It finished the season with a standing of 57-0. Its payroll for the year, including every cent that went to the players in salaries, was $2,500.

There were ten players on the club, of which one was a pitcher, Alex Brainerd, and another was a substitute. The average salary per player was less than a thousand dollars.

And last year Hans Wagner pulled down a good salary for calling out and punishing the ball and running bases.

Some difference, what?

Trying to put it in plain English, it is said to be drawing $12,500 this season. Now you could take Wagner's salary and the salary of the pitcher, who went through the season with a clean record, got $1,000. Six men drew $500 each and the rest of the team pulled down a good salary for calling out and punishing the ball and running bases.

BATTLING MANAGER OF THE FORT WAYNE TEAM OF 1913.

JAMES T. BURKE.

DETROIT LEADER PASSED THEM UP

Discards of Jennings Would Make First Class Club.

ARCHER WAS ONE

Any manager who can win three major league pennants in six years and finish lower than third only once in this period must have class. Hugh Jennings made such a record in Detroit. Hughes is a prince of good fellows and one of the most successful managers of the last decade. McGraw, Mack, Chance and Clarke are the only big league managers who have won more pennants than Hughes. But these four men have been in the managerial field longer than Hughes.

However smart a manager as Jennings is, he is nevertheless the Santa Claus of the big league. Hughes has passed up enough talent to recruit a full-fledged all-star team. It seems that wherever the boss of the Royal Bengals labels a youngster as a star, he is right. The kid immediately proceeds to develop into a star.

Among the stars who have been permitted to drift out of the Tiger corral during the Jennings regime in Detroit are Jeff Tesreau, Jimmy Archer, Birdie Cree, Jack Warburton, Bob Bescher, George Suggs and Ira Thomas.

Perhaps the best player Jennings permitted to get away from him is Archer, the crack catcher of the Cubs. "Squatter" Jennings counted for the Tigers in 1907, but his budding prowess did not make much of a hit with Jennings. Archer only hit .112 for Jennings in 18 games, so Hughes sold the prize catcher to Buffalo. From the Bisons Hughes went to the Cubs and has been a star ever since.

Jeff Tesreau hung his hat in a Detroit locker for about 10 days in 1909. The Ozark manager in that year was hunting for an Arkansas State league team when the circuit blew up. A Tiger scout thought he was getting Tess for nothing, and shipped him to Texas. Shortly afterward the Detroit club was informed by the Austin club of the Texas league that Tesreau was its property and named a small sum for which Detroit could have him. Jennings was consulted and he decided Jeff took up too much room in the club house, so the bear hunter was shipped back to Texas.

Neither Birdie Cree nor Jack Warburton were Tiger toppers, but they were the property of the Detroit club in the winter of 1908-09. Both men had made finer records at the time they were in the Detroit club, and Jennings picked them up. Hughes, however, thought he would like to have George Moriarty, then a pitcher in the Detroit club, and he offered Jennings a good price for him. Jennings promptly accepted the offer. Needles to say, Hughes would not trade Cree and Warburton for a dozen Moriartys. Cincinnati fans especially have reason to be thankful to Hughes, as he furnished them with two stars of the Redland club—George Suggs, the star pitcher, and Birdie Cree, the star outfielder and leading base stealer in the National league.

Suggs hung on with Detroit a full season—1908—but Jennings did not think much of his ability and passed him back to the minors. Suggs joined the Reds in 1910, and has been a star ever since he was trusted with regular assignments. Beecher, like Cree and Warburton, never played with the Tigers, though he was the property of the Detroit club for one year. Jennings did not think enough of the speed marvel then to give him a trial. Ira Thomas was not considered more than a fair catcher when he was with Detroit, and Hughes sold him to the fellow in Mack in 1909. Since Connie took him in hand he has been one of the leading catchers in the game, though his sun is beginning to set. It may be remembered that Thomas caught the only game won by the Tigers from the Cubs in the world's series in 1907 and 1908.

However, Jennings is not to blame for letting all his talent get away from him. Every manager is obliged to cut down his squad in the spring, and as the Tigers were changing the first three years were undergoing an operation in a hospital. Hughes managed them, he necessarily preferred the old boys who were delivering to untold youngsters.

BRANCH RICKEY SAYS HE HAS A GREAT STAR IN SISLER AND BELIEVES HE WILL SHINE IN THE GAME.

There aren't any more "Willie" Hestons at Michigan university, but, instead the school where Branch Rickey coaches the ball players host of a diamond star who looks like a combination left-handed Ed Walsh and Ty Cobb in embryo. He is George Sisler.

When Sisler is not pitching he plays the outfield. In the "Globe" (George) and "Peach" and "L" fourth, being the best clean-up man Michigan has had in decades.

Joe Surden, Detroit scout, says of him:

"He has the best curve of any left-hander I ever looked at."

Rickey, on the southern trip, was started by Sisler. He told some one, who repeated it, of course, that Sisler was so good it was hard to believe him an amateur. He plays a better game than many a class A leaguer right now. Sisler is also fast. He has been

"clocked" going to first in 3-3-5 seconds. He startles Michigan's opponents by going from first to third or from second home on an infield out or a fly to the outfield.

Few college players know how to run bases and not many slide properly. Sisler is an aggressive runner and has the book slide down to perfection.

His one fault seems to be over-anxiety to hit. If he has other weaknesses they remain hidden. In the south Rickey was in a hurry to catch a train one day and calling Sisler in from the outfield, told him to finish the game in a hurry. This he did by pitching nine balls, striking out the last three batters, who only heard the balls, what past.

WILL WEAR SERVICE STRIPES.

Chicago, April 29.—In addition to white uniforms which it has been announced umpires in the American league are to wear on gala occasions, such as the presence of the president of the United States at a game, President R. B. Johnson said last night that he had planned further decorations for his arbiters. The latest decorative effect will be a double purpose of ornament and showing spectators how long the umpires have been in the service of the league. This one braided on the sleeve will mean that he has been in service for one year, two braids two years and so on until five years are reached when a gold star will replace the five braids. Braids will be added to the star until ten years are reached, when two stars will be added. The umpire will wear two stars and two braids. In donning that he has been an umpire in every round, but the Italian's desperate twentieth round finish in the opinion of Referee Eton earned him a draw. The decision was unpopular and the crowd voiced its disapproval.

Throughout the fight Kilbane outboxed Dundee. The New Yorker's methods of jumping in the air and trying to land on an adversary provoked only the laughter of the champion, and solid blows to the body met nearly every effort of the challenger to land in this fashion.

DETROIT LEADER PASSED THEM UP

Any manager who can win three major league pennants in six years and finish lower than third only once in this period must have class. Hugh Jennings made such a record in Detroit. Hughes is a prince of good fellows and one of the most successful managers of the last decade. McGraw, Mack, Chance and Clarke are the only big league managers who have won more pennants than Hughes. But these four men have been in the managerial field longer than Hughes.

However smart a manager as Jennings is, he is nevertheless the Santa Claus of the big league. Hughes has passed up enough talent to recruit a full-fledged all-star team. It seems that wherever the boss of the Royal Bengals labels a youngster as a star, he is right. The kid immediately proceeds to develop into a star.

Among the stars who have been permitted to drift out of the Tiger corral during the Jennings regime in Detroit are Jeff Tesreau, Jimmy Archer, Birdie Cree, Jack Warburton, Bob Bescher, George Suggs and Ira Thomas.

Perhaps the best player Jennings permitted to get away from him is Archer, the crack catcher of the Cubs. "Squatter" Jennings counted for the Tigers in 1907, but his budding prowess did not make much of a hit with Jennings. Archer only hit .112 for Jennings in 18 games, so Hughes sold the prize catcher to Buffalo. From the Bisons Hughes went to the Cubs and has been a star ever since.

Jeff Tesreau hung his hat in a Detroit locker for about 10 days in 1909. The Ozark manager in that year was hunting for an Arkansas State league team when the circuit blew up. A Tiger scout thought he was getting Tess for nothing, and shipped him to Texas. Shortly afterward the Detroit club was informed by the Austin club of the Texas league that Tesreau was its property and named a small sum for which Detroit could have him. Jennings was consulted and he decided Jeff took up too much room in the club house, so the bear hunter was shipped back to Texas.

Neither Birdie Cree nor Jack Warburton were Tiger toppers, but they were the property of the Detroit club in the winter of 1908-09. Both men had made finer records at the time they were in the Detroit club, and Jennings picked them up. Hughes, however, thought he would like to have George Moriarty, then a pitcher in the Detroit club, and he offered Jennings a good price for him. Jennings promptly accepted the offer. Needles to say, Hughes would not trade Cree and Warburton for a dozen Moriartys. Cincinnati fans especially have reason to be thankful to Hughes, as he furnished them with two stars of the Redland club—George Suggs, the star pitcher, and Birdie Cree, the star outfielder and leading base stealer in the National league.

Suggs hung on with Detroit a full season—1908—but Jennings did not think much of his ability and passed him back to the minors. Suggs joined the Reds in 1910, and has been a star ever since he was trusted with regular assignments. Beecher, like Cree and Warburton, never played with the Tigers, though he was the property of the Detroit club for one year. Jennings did not think enough of the speed marvel then to give him a trial. Ira Thomas was not considered more than a fair catcher when he was with Detroit, and Hughes sold him to the fellow in Mack in 1909. Since Connie took him in hand he has been one of the leading catchers in the game, though his sun is beginning to set. It may be remembered that Thomas caught the only game won by the Tigers from the Cubs in the world's series in 1907 and 1908.

However, Jennings is not to blame for letting all his talent get away from him. Every manager is obliged to cut down his squad in the spring, and as the Tigers were changing the first three years were undergoing an operation in a hospital. Hughes managed them, he necessarily preferred the old boys who were delivering to untold youngsters.

J. M. BARRETT IS TO BE PRESIDENT

Local Man to Succeed Jones as Head of the Traction Company.

THE OTHER CHANGES

According to announcement made in Fort Wayne today, Attorney James M. Barrett is to become the new president of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company, succeeding Col. J. L. Jones, of Philadelphia, who is forced to retire from the head of the corporation on account of the requirements of the new utilities law passed by the Indiana legislature at its recent session.

The law requires that the president and other officials of public service corporations operating in the state, be residents of the state, and it is necessary for the traction company to reorganize its official list.

H. C. Paul, president of the Old National bank, is vice president and treasurer of the company, and ever since the traction company operated its cars by horse power, Mr. Barrett has been the general counsel. They are also the only two directors of the company who reside in Fort Wayne. It will be necessary for the majority of the directors and also the secretary to be residents of Indiana, under the new law.

This reorganization was to be taken up at a meeting of the board today at Philadelphia, and it is said that Mr. Barrett is to be elected president. Prior to this time it was believed that the office would go to Mr. Paul but the latter declared today that his other business interests require too much of his time, and added that Mr. Barrett's experience in the affairs of the company, and his general efficiency would enable him to assume the duties of head of the corporation.

Tomorrow is the last day for changes in the new telephone directory.

A mortgage for $375,000 covering the property of the newly organized Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company and in favor of the Equitable Trust company, of New York, was filed today with the county recorder.

long enough to support her and their child and she has either to live with her or her parents most of the time. She also says she is compelled to work as cashier in picture show houses to clothe herself and their child. They were married in March, 1903, and she charges that he left her with $5 on April 13. Judge R. B. Dreihelms filed the action.

Scherer Not Satisfied.
Charles W. Scherer is not satisfied with the $500 awarded him for his property to be taken in the opening of Fourth street and he has filed a suit demanding $1,000. R. B. Dreihelms represents him. He wants the furniture.

Washington, April 30.—President Wilson today telegraphed his regret at being unable to attend the American peace congress at St. Louis. It was reported earlier today that the commission might take cognizance of the proposed congressional investigation of the alleged "base ball trust" and issue a statement insisting on the guiltlessness of organized base ball, but no action had been taken this afternoon.

This rate will go into effect when the new machinery that the city has ordered installed comes. This low rate will enable the manufacturers of the city to use electricity for power at a lower cost than they can use any other power.

At present there are at least three candidates for every office and prospects for more as the election draws near.

ORPHAN CHILD DEAD.

Was Being Educated by Catholic Pastor at Columbia City.

Columbia City, April 30.—Little Joseph Kenneth Barry, aged 6 years, an orphan child taken by Rev. J. E. Kohl, pastor of the St. Paul's Catholic church here, to care for and educate and to whom he was greatly attached, died Tuesday afternoon from an attack of typhoid fever and meningitis. He had been ailing for three weeks, but was only taken to a sick bed on Saturday, April 19.

The child was born in New York city, and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joakim Barry. The father met death suddenly in a railway accident and the mother died when the child was two months of age. Left an orphan the child was placed in the New York Foundling asylum, and Father Kohl secured him three years ago last December. He was in the first grade in the parish school and was a particularly bright and winsome little fellow.

Father Kohl feels keenly the death of the boy for whom he was making a home. His attachment for the little fellow was very deep seated and he loved him as devotedly as a father could an only son.

McClure, a member of the railroad commission of Indiana, to act for the city of Peru, Miami county, and railroad officials in the construction of a railroad bridge over the Wabash river at Peru. The state will pay the expense, but the three interests had asked the railroad commission to select a competent engineer. Representatives of the city of Peru, the county and railroad will meet in the railroad commission's office tomorrow to consider arrangements for the work and how the expense shall be divided.

Motherlove Drives Widow to Black Up as Negress and Follow Houseboat 1,000 Miles in Thrilling Chase.

Port Huron, Mich., April 30.—Mrs. Rose Allen, a pretty St. Louis widow, has taken her two little daughters from her former lover after a thrilling and picturesque chase as you ever read in a novel.

She followed a houseboat from Louisville to Paducah, Ky., and from there to St. Louis. In the houseboat were her daughters, with their legal guardian, William Abar, who had gotten possession of the children while posing as a single man and husband-to-be of Mrs. Allen.

At St. Louis Mrs. Allen blackened her face and, taking a real negro woman long to do the talking, boarded the boat and kidnapped one of her little girls. But the court made her give the girl back for, while Mrs. Allen was in love with Abar she had given the girl into Abar's charge.

Then Abar, the girls and the houseboat left St. Louis. Part of the way it traveled by water. It was repainted and made nameless so the distracted mother would have a harder time finding it and her daughters. Still she followed, whether it went by rail loaded on a freight car or by water.

At Detroit she learned there was a strange houseboat at Port Huron and Mrs. Allen came by the fastest steamer. Again the houseboat had been painted another color, but the mother eyes were not fooled. She knew! A lawyer and a judge who felt differently than did the St. Louis judge gave Mrs. Allen a legal paper restoring her daughters to her— if she could get them.

Hiring a fast motor boat, the mother and the sheriff went out into Lake St. Clair hunting for the houseboat that held her babies. At last they found an unknown houseboat anchored off Strawberry Island. Quickly they boarded her—and the girls were caught into the mother's arms and crushed to her breast.

Abar had gone hunting and was away when the girls were removed from the houseboat. He declared all along that he had grown to love the children as his own and that there could be no healthier way for them to grow up than aboard the houseboat drifting through northern waters in summer and under southern skies by winter.

But they, the girls, love their mother, and now they've started for St. Louis and their mamma's home for good and all time.

Mrs. Allen became acquainted with Abar several years ago. He professed great love for Lucile and Etta, little bits of tots then. The mother and Abar became engaged "because," as Mrs. Allen explained, "he seemed to think so much of my fatherless babies."

"I let him take the children to Chicago to visit his relatives. He never gave them back to me, always making some excuse to keep them from me. So I started after them. At Chicago I learned he had gone to Louisville."

"At Paducah I found him and his wife. He was married all the time he was going with me and I never suspected it. I also found out that while he had the children he had taken out legal adoption papers and made my babies belong to him and his wife."

"Then I began to fight for my daughters. I went to the courts, but as soon as I got my lawyers ready Abar would float his houseboat along the river out of that court's jurisdiction. He and his wife said they loved the children as if they were their own, but I wanted them; they were mine, all I have in this world."

"Blacking up as a negress in St. Louis was the most trying thing I ever did in my whole life. Under my coat of black I must have been as white as snow, so scared was I. But the real negress helped me wonderfully. She talked to the men along the river for me. I was too frightened to speak at all."

"It was she who helped me find out that Abar was going to take his boat into the great lakes and spend the summer along the shores."

"Talking about finding a needle in a haystack being hard work, that is an easy job compared to keeping on the track of a houseboat when there are miles and miles of rivers and creeks and big lakes to hide in."

POSTPONE HONEYMOON TRIP.

Newlyweds at Wabash Fail to Meet Because of Accident.

Wabash, Ind., April 30.—Forgetting all about her wedding trip was the experience of Mrs. Guy Hoover of this city, a bride of two days, and, although the honeymoon trip was postponed, the newlyweds expect yet to make the visit which was suddenly postponed. Mrs. Hoover was to meet her husband at the interurban station a day or two ago to start on their wedding trip, twenty-four hours after their wedding. Two of the bride's friends were driving her to the station when their horses ran away, throwing the bride's companions out and seriously injuring them. Meanwhile the anxious husband awaited at the terminal station, but the failure of his wife to come prompted him to investigate. Starting out to search for his wife, he found her bending over the forms of her two injured friends. Doctors took the injured to their homes, accompanied by Mrs. Hoover. Owing to the excitement and the condition of her companions, neither Mr. nor Mrs. Hoover recalled the fact that their wedding trip had been interrupted until the following day.

BIRDS REGULAR GLUTTONS.

Eat More Than Pigs in Proportion to Weight.

Washington, April 30.—Birds, in proportion to their weight, probably eat more than any other living thing. It is a mystery to naturalists how the ring dove flies after its accustomed meal. One dove was found with 600 peas in its crop; another, in captivity, was known to eat 180 beechnuts at a time, and a third devoured sixty acorns. The robin often eats two and one-half times its weight in twenty-four hours, while a barnyard hen with chicks has been observed to resume eating 475 times in the course of a day. The diet of a certain species of hawk comprises about 2,000 mice in the course of a month, besides other food. In the mouth of a young heron were found three trout, each weighing three-quarters of a pound. Another was found with seven small trout in its mouth, a mouse and a thrush. The growing bird seems to have an appetite equal to that of the adult.

Rambler
Motor Cars

Have you seen the Cross Country with the U. S. L. starting and lighting system?

It's the simplest, quietest and most effective device yet designed for the purpose.

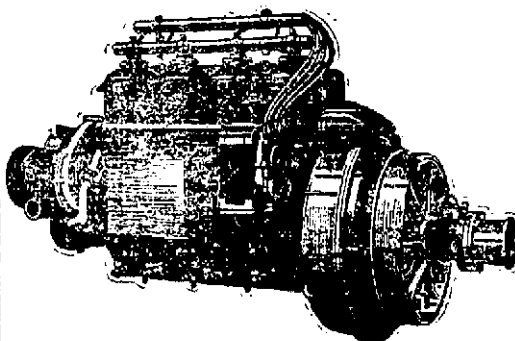

It saves weight, bearings, chains, gears, complicated wiring, and operates silently.

The usual cast-iron fly-wheel of the ordinary engine is left off. Parts forming the electric motor generator take the place of the fly-wheel.

The only wearing parts, other than those of all gasoline engines, are the motor generator brushes, which are made much larger than necessary—ample for mileage of three seasons of ordinary use.

You start the Cross Country motor with just a single operation. Press a button—that's all. Press another—the lamps are lighted.

Elopement of High School Girls With Married Men May End in Penitentiary.

Top: Lola Norris and F. Drew Caminetti. Bottom: Maury I. Diggs and Marsha Warrington.

San Francisco, Cal., April 30.—When Maury Diggs, prominent architect of Sacramento, Cal., and F. Drew Caminetti, national guardsman, son of a state senator, eloped with two high school girls of that city, they didn't know that they would be prosecuted for white slavery.

But Uncle Sam, through United States District Attorney McNab, of San Francisco, has taken a hand in the elopement and has had both men indicted by a grand jury and they will shortly be tried for violation of the Mann law. Caminetti and Diggs were both married men with children. One day, several weeks ago, they disappeared and at the same time Marsha Warrington and Lola Norris, high school girls and daughters of prominent Sacramento families, also dropped from sight. A state wide search was immediately instituted, and officers in every city were notified. Suspicion pointed to an elopement. The quartette was finally located in a cottage at Reno, Nevada.

They were brought back to their homes, the men being lodged in jail for their own safety, as it was feared that relatives of the girls might try to take the law into their own hands.

Then Uncle Sam took a hand in the game. The men were arraigned on a charge of white slavery, under the Mann act, which makes it unlawful to take women from state to state for immoral purposes. The girls were held as witnesses. A side issue was the indictment of Charles Harris, lawyer and politician of Sacramento, on charges of having attempted to coach Marsha Warrington

Next to Mrs. Gerberding stands Mrs. Alice Best, president of the Weller Recall League, then comes A. L. Friedman, election judge, and sitting is Mrs. Kate N. Dewey, election clerk. PREACHER SAYS ADAM WAS BLACK

So Was Eve, Noah, Abraham and All of the Apostles, He Thinks.

RAPS NEGRO WOMEN

Columbus, O., April 30.—Adam and Eve were negroes. Noah, Abraham, Moses and Jacob were negroes. Jesus was a negro and all the apostles were negroes. Since God made man in his own image, God himself is a negro.

Such is the claim of the Church of God and Saints of Christ, colored, which held its annual convention of churches of the middle western states in Columbus. Rev. S. W. P. Harper, national evangelist for the church, expounded the belief of the church to several hundred Columbus negroes at the I. O. O. F. hall at Long street and Garfield avenue. Many were dressed in the gaudy uniform of the church. Women wore blue waists and multi-colored turbans, and men wore conventional brown and huge badges to typify their creed. On their heads were classical mortar-board caps.

Scores Would-be White. The white man is a descendant of Esau, Rev. Mr. Harper declared in ringing tones to the audience, which shouted assent to every utterance. Esau had rough skin, but Jacob's was smooth and velvety, like that of the black man the world over. Here the speaker launched into a dissertation of the natural beauty of the black man's skin, its fine texture and the sin of modern colored women who powder to make themselves resemble white women.

"If the good lord had wanted you to wear that flour stuff on your faces he would have made you born with a coating of it an inch thick," he told them.

"All claims of the Church of God and Saints of Christ are held to be proved by passages from the Bible. He ridiculed Catholics, Methodists and Baptists for their baptismal rites, and fired hot shots at his listeners for observing St.

Patrick's day by wearing green ribbons. Members of this church observe Saturday as their Sabbath.

"You all don't like to work on Saturday, anyhow, he explained in an attempt to show that the desire to worship on Saturday is inborn in the race. 'Stores close at noon on Saturday, or the Sabbath. You take a half holiday then, and women let their work go over to Monday. There you are. There is proof that Saturday, the seventh day, is the real Sabbath. Another proof is the way that you all like to go covertly around on Sunday. It ain't the Lord's day really, or you wouldn't want to do that!'

Kissing is Justified.

The preacher defended the custom of foot washing, which is practiced by this church against attacks that it is unimposed for men to wash women's feet, by suggesting that doctors are allowed to work their calling as they please. Satisfaction by kissing is equally justifiable, he maintained. Members of the Church of God and Saints of Christ, men and women, kiss when they meet.

Neither are the grand march and the "buck and wing" barred from services, for does not the Bible recommend dancing for joy. Shouting is the approved thing, and residents in the neighborhood of Long street and Garfield avenue have had samples of dancing and shouting until midnight every evening.

The Columbus organization worships in the I. O. O. F. hall every Saturday. Elder A. Hawkins is the pastor. The total membership of the church in the United States is 5,000. It does not refuse white members, and the senior bishop, Rev. J. M. Grove of Emporia, Kan., who is attending the meetings here, is a white man.

William Nahom of Pittsburgh and John Fields of Columbus were ordained elders of the church.

JAWS WERE OPEN FORTY MINUTES

Dentist and Patient Both Relieved When They Snap Back.

WAS AN ODD AFFAIR

Chicago, Cal., April 30.—F. M. Price, proprietor of Price's candy store on Broadway, knows how it feels to have lockjaw. He suffered for forty minutes with it and lives to tell the tale. And his experience is one that he is not desirous of having repeated.

Price had some teeth that needed fixing and sought the services of a local dentist. The tooth manipulator spent fifteen minutes at the job, which required Price to keep his mouth wide open a good deal wider than he is in the habit of doing.

When the job was completed and the dentist gave the customary instructions to "expectorate, please," Price refused to expectorate. He simply couldn't, that is all. His jaws refused to come together and all the efforts of the dentist to bring them together failed.

Price and the doctor became frightened. They were reason for fear. The doctor worked frantically for aid when a happy thought struck him. He braced his feet against the wall, placed his two thumbs into Price's yawning mouth and gave a sudden and unusual jerk. The jaws snapped together with a sound like a pistol shot and the dentist came near losing a pair of thumbs by the operation.

Price declares that he never wants a repetition of the experience, and the doctor shudders when he speaks of it. The jaws were locked just forty minutes by the clock in the dentist's office.

Aside from a soreness in both jaws, Price is all right today.

Men, Let Me Talk Some Cold, Common, Tobacco-Sense to You

I am a Kentuckian, I know tobacco, and I can tell you there are only two kinds of smoking—Good tobacco and Poor tobacco.

You can pay any price you like. You can buy it in tin boxes or glass jars—you can buy any "process" you like. But—if it isn't good tobacco to begin with it will never be good.

Here is my message to you—

Don't pay double for tobacco just because you get it in a tin box.

Yours on the line
B. A. Mascot

MASCOT

CRUSHED CUT TOBACCO

The Brand New Idea in Smoking Tobacco

Costs only 5 cents—but it is as good tobacco as ever came out of Kentucky. The reason I can sell you ten cent quality and quantity for a nickel is—I pack MASCOT in an inexpensive moisture-proof cloth pouch.

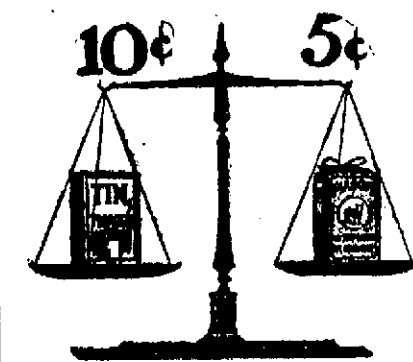

Tin boxes cost money. The manufacturer passes that cost on to you. You pay for tin. You can't smoke tin; but you buy tin in order to get GOOD tobacco.

With MASCOT in the field, that tin-box, goat-fodder money-waste is no longer necessary on your part. Quit it.

MASCOT isn't an ordinary 5 cent tobacco. In quality it stands shoulder-to-shoulder with the ten-centers. It is the very cleanest, carefully-cured mild old Burley leaf, the best Kentucky grows, aged until it is mellow and sweet and fragrant; then sliced, rolled and crushed until all the tobacco runs uniformly through and none of it "smokes in streaks."

Men, you can't buy better tobacco. You take my word and just try it.

Buy it today.

In Pouch 5c—In Tins it would cost you double 5c

Ortie E. McManigal to Change His Personal Appearance.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 30.—Ortie E. McManigal, confessed dynamiter, plans to have his appearance altered by surgery when he is released. It is reported his release from the county jail may be granted at any time, and McManigal hopes to so change himself that no one will know him as the man whose testimony sent the McNamara brothers and more than a score of labor union officials to prison. Detectives say his release will be secret to aid him, according to a statement published here today. McManigal fell from a moving wagon while a child and the wheel inflicted an injury on his head and left a large scar across his forehead. The mark aided detectives who traced him after the destruction of the Los Angeles Times building by dynamite. Doctors have told McManigal that the scar can be removed and he plans to have it done as soon as he gains his freedom.

HIS BODY IS DEAD AS A LOG, BUT HE IS NOT!

A. E. RUMP, THE "DEAD MAN," IN HIS "OFFICE."

BY FRANK PARKER STOCKRIDGE.

What would you do, if—
You were knocked on the head with a hundred-pound bundle and rendered insensible—

Came down with what the doctors called "rheumatism" and had to work every day suffering horrible tortures—
After five years of this sort of thing, put in another two years going to work on crutches—

Were taken to a hospital and incased from head to foot in plaster bandages for ten months, and when they took off the plaster bandages found you could not move a single joint below the shoulders—

What would you do?
Especially if you were only 35 years old when it was all over and had a wife to support and no pension or savings?
Like A. E. Rump, for instance? He was a clerk in the St. Louis postoffice until he lost his job through his illness caused by the injuries he received in the course of his work.

For more than a year Rump's joints have been "ankylosed," so that his whole body from his shoulders down is as stiff as a board and he has to be lifted in and out of bed like a log. He can't bend his knees or his hips, his ankles or his toes or his back—his neck, shoulders, elbows and hands are the only movable joints in his whole body.

This is the place where you want to take off your hat to A. E. Rump for when he found himself in this condition he didn't whimper, he didn't give in, didn't pray for death—none of the things that you or I would have done did A. E. Rump do.

No, sir! Not for a minute. He's a man!

"Got to earn a living somehow," he said. "Let's find a way."
So while his wife put in the intervals between caring for her helpless husband in working at home at her old trade of photograph retouching, he considered—No capital, you understand—no trade that he could possibly work at—concluded to spend the rest of his life either lying flat in bed or propped up on his feet with something to lean against, as you'd lean a ladder against the side of a house—but he just knew he could earn a living!

He's doing it!

He put in a telephone—two of them, for there are two telephone systems in St. Louis—and began telephoning to people he knew asking them to send him their magazine subscriptions. The first month he earned $70 in commissions, lying flat on his back in bed and just telephoning!

Then he won a typewriter that was offered as a prize to subscription agents, had a high stand built to hold it, a high chair with a seat like a bicycle saddle—he can't sit down, you remember—and began writing letters. Never had used a typewriter before, but he writes letters that would do credit for neatness to a stenographer.

"I started in August 1, 1912," Rump told me. "I have taken subscriptions in 38 different states—Canada, Mexico, Philippine Islands and Germany—and last week I had a nice order from Shanghai!"

"I have earned a good income for a man in my condition—about $100 a month on the average after I have paid my telephone bills, stationery, postage and circular advertising."

Can you beat that for clear grit!

WOMAN ENVOY IS KEEN ON FARMING

Advises Women to Go West and Study Agricultural Problems.

SOLVE LIVING COST

New York, April 30.—"Teach the women of the United States, especially the immigrants constantly arriving here, that the farms of the west and middle west offer better, more wholesome, more productive and more scientific means of living than the close quarters of the factories in the large cities and you will introduce the most potent factor for lowering the cost of living and raising its standard," said Mrs. Kate Trimble Woolsey at the Great Northern hotel just after she had received from Governor Sulzer her commission as one of the two delegates to represent New York state at the general assembly of the International Institute of Agriculture in Rome.

Mrs. Woolsey will be the only woman representative among the hundred or more from this country, and her efforts will be devoted to presenting the woman's side of the international agricultural problem. She has studied it for many years in this country and abroad, and the distinction was bestowed upon her by the governor partly because of this fact and also because Mrs. Woolsey two years ago was the only woman delegate of the United States chosen by twenty-five bodies of scientists to this international gathering of scientists in Brussels. She made the opening speech, Opportunity for Women.

Always keen for the progress of women, Mrs. Woolsey will lay before the congress her theories concerning the easiest, surest, safest and cleanest way for women who are dependent on themselves to get the best out of life, and that is by turning to the farming fields, where there is fertility and freedom, both domestic and economic.

"Women should be the pioneers in this movement, because a beautiful way is open for them," said Mrs. Woolsey. "We see thousands of young women coming here year after year, who are forced to work in factories for wages that barely keep them alive. We see hundreds of them dying every year because they have been deprived of the sunlight and air that they need. We see them starving because they cannot earn enough to purchase food to give them the nourishment they should have. We see them living in squalid surroundings, all of which is unnecessary."

"All through the west and middle west there are vast opportunities for the women who want to work by taking small farms and growing fruits, flowers, vegetables and developing to large farms or ranches, with their thousands of cattle, as some of our wealthy native women have done before them. There are many features in agricultural life that women can take up independently of man."

"By establishing five and ten-acre farms in communities they not only will make themselves economically independent, but will show the charm to the country life that will draw the men out after them. In England women are doing splendidly, making an independent living on small farms, and in many places the land where they raise $50 or $60 worth of products an acre is worth $500 an acre. Lady Wolsley in England is now demonstrating that. She has subdivided her estate into many sections and has women running their own farms. They have many markets close by to cater to and the results are splendid."

Method for America, Also.
"In America we have every reason to adopt the same methods. America can't do anything in a small way and make a success of it, so we must do it in a large way. We will soon have the Panama canal opening, bringing thousands of women to the western shores. We should try to induce them to turn toward the farms, rather than the congested cities, where they never will be able to gain the domestic and economic freedom that they may find in agriculture. Take California, for instance. It is our garden state. We should show them where to go in a state like that to start a community. They could live in the open for six months, as I have done, with no rent or mortgage above them."

"In the last thirty or forty years the population of the country has quadrupled, yet the production has not advanced relatively. That is the reason it costs so much to live. We can revise the tariff all we want to, we can introduce theories about supply and demand, but the one startling fact remains that thousands upon thousands of young people are flocking to the large cities looking for wealth and leaving the future of the farm to look after itself."

"We want to make our farms attractive and show the charm of country life to women who are looking to making themselves independent. Women will make a success of agriculture, because when they do go into it they learn scientific and intensive farming and will not study any other kind."

CURED OF CHRONIC CONSTIPATION

"For twenty-one years I suffered with chronic constipation," says C. W. Robinson, of Cordova, S. C. "In May, 1908, it had assumed a more serious form, resulting in indigestion, piles and neurasthenia. Life seemed a burden to me. Two famous physicians and one specialist with all their drastic drugs failed to help me. A friend advised me to give Chamberlain's Tablets a trial, which I did, and am pleased to say two bottles of them cured me." For sale by all dealers.

Z-Z-Z-Zing! Look Out For Typhoid and Malaria

Remarkable Antidote That Makes Your Blood Withstand the Germs That Cause Epidemics.

Mosquitoes, Flies, Stagnant Water and Slimy Holes Imperil Thousands of Precious Lives.

A host of people in this section have become inoculated with the poisonous germs of malaria. In other sections they no longer fear epidemics of malaria, typhoid and other germ diseases. They have found a perfect antidote in S. S. S., the most wonderful blood purifier and health restorer ever discovered.

Thousands of people do not realize why they are sick, gloomy, despondent and scarcely able to get around. It is the poison in the blood from mosquito bites, from impure drinking water, from the miasma in the air, the foul, reeking pollution of the soil from overflooded land, from rotting weeds and the decay that makes the air you breathe a veritable death-trap.

S. S. S. a Marvel in the Blood.
No matter what the cause of your lastitude, skin eruptions, glandular swellings, as exhibited in certain malarial districts, yellow eyeballs, pale, anemic complexion, and other depressing symptoms, S. S. S. goes into your blood, takes possession of the nutritive function and begins the work of restoration right away. The reason for this is the fact that S. S. S. contains one most remarkable ingredient, the purpose of which is to stimulate each cellular part of the body to select from the blood the nutrient it requires to renew its life, to throw off disease and thus return to the condition of perfect health.

S. S. S. as Necessary as Your Food.
The wonderful results from the use of S. S. S. are a scientific discovery. The medicinal value of the components of this remarkable medicine are relatively just as necessary to well-balanced health as the nutritive properties of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of the food we eat to sustain life.

And the constant influence of S. S. S. in dominating this cellular activity, of forcing out the diseased atoms and replacing them with rich nutrition, brings about a restoration as completely and as quickly as it is gratifying and conspicuous.

S. S. S. Make You Feel Fine.
After you have used S. S. S. for a few days the heavy, tired sensation in limbs and muscles is overcome, the droopy, languid feeling gives way to a buoyancy of health, the skin begins to pink with the hue of vigorous blood; the eyes brighten, skin eruptions dry up and all internal tenderness, soreness, swellings and other symptoms of malaria disappear.

You can get S. S. S. at almost any drug store in the United States, even in the most remote districts, as this wonderful remedy is considered a panacea by experienced people throughout the malarial regions. To cure malaria is but a question of using S. S. S. It is certainly a marvel. And if there are peculiar phases of your trouble or any other blood disorder write to the Medical Department of The Swift Specific Co., 130 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga. Their specialists will advise you what to do, and there will be no charge for this skillful and invaluable service.

STRANGEST AND OLDEST SHIP AFOAT—THE CHINESE PIRATE CRAFT—"NING PO."

Chinese version of "Sixteen men on a dead man's chest."

"The devil may have done for the rest," but the British and Chinese governments "did" for the pirate craft.

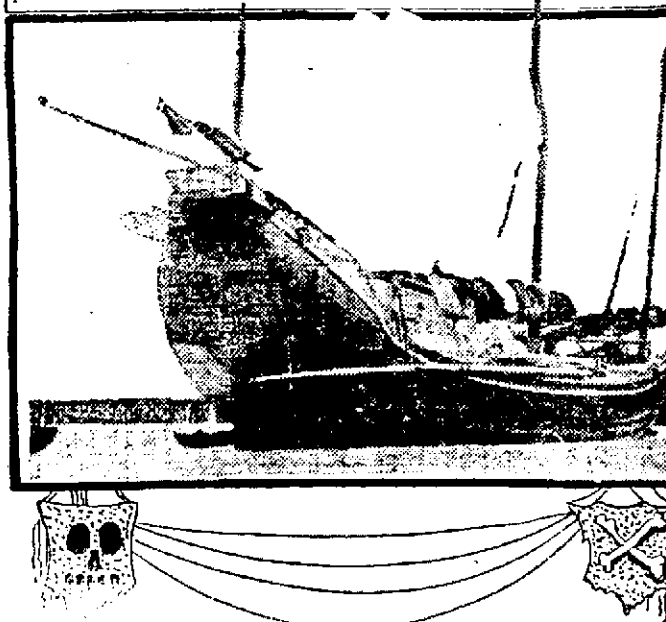

And now the Ning Po really is a "peaceful wave," a ship useful only for her historic value. But a person with an imagination can see romance in all her antiquated lines from porcelain-covered bow to high-arched stern and towering yard-armed masts placed to catch the monsoons which made her the fastest of her ancient day.

A junk she is, made by the Chinese in days when piracy was an honorable calling.

Her owners say she is the oldest ship afloat. She is 100 years old. Her tragic record is one of piracy, slaving, embezzling and rebellion. She was the bane of the British East India company in days gone by.

She was sailed across the Pacific from the shores of Asia to be used by moving picture concerns as a background for stories of the China coast in days gone by.

The Junk, Ning Po, part of her strange crew that mutinied last year when the junk was about to leave the coast of Asia for its long voyage to San Diego, Cal., and picture of her elaborately decorated stern, showing strange scenes of days long past, when this pirate ship roamed the China sea in search of rich prizes, their's for the taking.

San Diego, Cal., April 30.—As out of the mist of a pirate tale of a Stevenson book, there sailed into San Diego harbor recently a ship with a record as red as her blood stained decks. As if in grim irony toward her adventurous past, she bears the name of Ning Po—"Peaceful Wave." A name for a privateer!

Many is the run she has had before the men-o-war of all nations, always outdistancing them with her cloud of yellow silk sails that held the breeze and made her cut the oily waters of far eastern seas. Wild times were had on her high decks with as blood-thirsty a mob of buccanniers as ever beheaded a captive while singing, perhaps, some Men told the women these things had "always been done." But a little body of women who heard the statement was aroused to a fierce anger—the sort of anger a mother feels when one of her own is attacked. And this was the third offense charged against this summer.

A few women from an unfashionable outlying district of San Francisco, who had come to court to protect the girl, cried out at the injustice.

"We will recall this man!" they said. And the court officials laughed and the loungers nudged each other. They have not used it sensationally. Judge Weller and his officials were not afraid of that little group of plainly dressed home women who knew nothing about court procedure.

But that little group of angry women left that courtroom with their heads made up. They told the story of Judge Weller's court. Women everywhere asked, "Do these things happen?" They found these things had happened very often.

The specific case of another helpless child, terribly wronged by three men, whose case was dismissed, was the unearthen record that turned the popular tide against Weller. His record for three years read, in 15 cases of assault, with an average bail ranging from $50 to $500; one man held to answer, ten dismissed; three fled the jurisdiction of the court. Fifteen typical cases for crimes against property for the same period fixed the average bail at $2,500.

The working men and women of San Francisco said, "What protection have any of our girls in court where bail for heinous crimes is fixed so low it amounts to a fine, and where a man who destroys a girl is considered more light-y than a man who steals a horse?" It was those men and women, who, opposed by the big, the sinister and conservative interests, ousted the judge who failed to protect their girls and elected a young man with a clean record and new spirit in his place.

It was a campaign waged without money. The thirty women who finally directed the campaign enlisted hundreds of helpers. The women paid for their own stamps to circulate San Francisco. Those who could not afford the money tramped from house to house leaving the leaflets telling Weller's record and urging the home women to vote.

When deluged were to be printed they "took up a collection." And they finished the three months' campaign with only $85 in outstanding bills—to be paid by a last "collection!"

RHINO VERY KIND TO BLIND ENEMY

Halts Ferocious Charge When He Sees Foe of Seven Years Ago.

IS NOW SIGHTLESS

New York, April 30.—For seven years Bill, a two-horned rhinoceros in the Bronx zoo, has been spending every spare moment of his time trying to break down a stone wall that separated him from the cage next to his, occupied by Mogul, another rhino.

Two years ago Mogul was operated on and both his eyes were removed. If it hadn't been that he is the only Indian rhino in captivity he would have been killed. Before Mogul lost his sight he hated Bill as much as Bill did him, and when the pair were turned into a yard where they could get together it generally took a score of keepers to separate them.

The keepers decided they would take another chance and turned the two out in the same yard. Twenty keepers were on hand with clubs to separate them in the fight they thought was sure to happen.

Bill, who hails from Africa, took a good look at his enemy, whom he had not seen since the operation was performed on his eyes, and then he charged him. When he was within a few feet of the blind Mogul he suddenly ended his rush, and then for the rest of the afternoon the two rhinos walked around the yard, the best of pals. They probably will be placed in the same cage, so they can keep each other company.

One of the keepers said he believed Bill saw his former enemy was blind and decided he wouldn't fight when his adversary couldn't see him.

GROWS TOO LARGE TO GET IN STORE

Gained 139 Pounds After Taking Establishment and Will Move Out OF HIS 3 FOOT SHOP

New York, April 30.—Because he grew so stout during the last winter and now can hardly squeeze in and out of his place of business Leo Strass, proprietor of a jewelry store in Sixth Avenue, announced that he would be obliged to move to larger quarters June 1. The place is a few doors above Forty-second street, and is so small that it can not support a full or half number street address and is known as No. 745½ Sixth Avenue.

"The Jewel Box" is what Strass calls his store. It is three feet wide and eighteen feet in depth. There is a wall case where the stock is displayed running the length of the room. This leaves a margin of but two feet floor space for the proprietor to wait on his customers.

It is with difficulty that Mr. Strass turns around in the building, and long ago he adopted the custom of taking off and putting on his overcoat outside the building to avoid wrecking his store during the procedure. One day recently he sneezed, and the vibration sent two expensive vases from a shelf crashing on the floor. A Chinese sword likewise fell from its hanging and Mr. Strass narrowly escaped being decapitated.

"I suppose I am about the unluckiest merchant in the city," lamented Mr. Strass. "After I have established a good business here I must up and leave it. When I opened this place three years ago I weighed 140 pounds. Now I tip the beam at 285 pounds. At first I could move around with ease, but now I move up and down in here like a piston rod.

"When the matter became serious I consulted my physician. He said I was shut up here so closely that I did not get enough exercise. He said that I was growing plump just like a goose that is nailed to the floor with tacks through the webs of its feet so it can not stir about. He said I should take cold baths and exercise. I did—and gained in weight every day.

"It was not a laughing matter at all. In two weeks I wear off the wall paper and my clothes take on a shiny appearance in little or no time. Reluctantly, I am breaking my lease. But if they insist on my remaining here I will break it literally, and the whole building will go up. After I eat a hearty meal and drink very much water I am often obliged to keep my place closed for a few hours.

"The worst blow of all came last week when my landlord notified me that the city demanded that eighteen inches be cut off the front of my store to conform with the new building line. Zint goes my display window. That would ruin me entirely. This is not a case of a man being too small for his business or business outgrowing one. I have simply outgrown my business.

"When I first opened here I had a sign painted and hung above the door which was worded in a sort of apologetic tone. It read, 'Watch us grow.' We did grow, but not as I hoped. Little did I think there was a hidden tragic meaning in that growing allusion."

SOUR STOMACH. This is a mild form of indigestion. Eat slowly, masticate your food thoroughly and take one of Chamberlain's Tablets just after supper and it may be avoided. For sale by all dealers.

MAHIN TALKS TO THE QUEST CLUB

Great Advertising Manager
Gives Ideas About Business.

MANY ATTEND FEAST

Declaring that this is a day of co-operation and that the success of every business man and business institution depends upon the "group spirit" in commercialism, John Lee Mahin, president of the Mahin Advertising company, of Chicago, last evening addressed more than one hundred members and friends of the Fort Wayne Quest club at the annual banquet held at the Anthony hotel.

E. F. Yarnelle presided as toastmaster and the invocation was pronounced by B. Paul Mossman. E. W. Puckett, who with E. H. Morrill, was the originator of the Quest club, delivered a brief address and introduced Mr. Mahin. Prior to the address of the evening Mr. Yarnelle briefly told the history of the organization, explaining its purpose and showing how successful the club has been and demonstrating what an important part it has taken in local business activity.

At the close of the banquet the members acted as hosts to the guests at an informal reception held in the club's quarters on the eighth floor of the Anthony hotel.

Mr. Mahin's subject was, "Should Advertising Be Added to the Cost of Selling," and his address dealt principally with the matter of placing goods upon the market and making the purchaser think that he has got what he was looking for and feel satisfied. His advice is to push one's own goods, not a trade mark line and he told stories illustrating that his line of reasoning has been proved a success.

"Salesmanship is the power of one human to impress another on the value of his ideas," said Mr. Mahin. "A sales man can make his customers believe that he is so valuable to the customer's business that he is needed in order to bring success."

Mr. Mahin also explained the value of the development of individual efficiency, which he declared is one of the biggest assets in modern business. He also said that co-operation is one of the greatest aids to business today and declared that most of the successful business men of today take pleasure in seeing other men make money and brilliant business deals, showing that a change for the better has taken place since the day when competitors would not speak on the street if they were both trying to sell a similar line of goods.

The address was of great interest throughout and was a distinct help in an educational way to those who were present. Mr. Mahin's stories and illustrations concerning modern business efficiency could not fail to make even the most successful man present feel that by more co-operation with his fellow he could add to his success and himself become a more efficient business man.

We have good news from this section today. The Curtain Special is an offering of Linen Scrim, Linen Insertion and Bobbinette with Linen Lace Insertion, antique in design and color. THE LATEST OVERHANGS

The ODESSA CLOTH in a number of bright, solid colors, twill weave and soft finish is a strong favorite with the Mercerized Shikii; also in solid colors, but showing many pretty Jacquard Loom designs, a close second. The home of these beautiful, stylish hangings is Russia, from whence come so many rich, novel and durable weaves for this purpose, and they are the finest productions that country has given us in over a year. Both run 50 inches wide and the quality is unquestioned. These will be hung free of charge.

WONDERFUL NEW SLIP COVERS

This is the brand new Printed Linen Cretonne. It is printed on a superb quality of linen in several flower designs unusually bright and cheerful in tone, and true to color. Some of the wonderful color effects beggar description—you must see them in order to realize how beautiful they really are.

Accompanying them is a splendid collection of Chintz in a wide variety of color tones and a wide range of weaves and material. These are the pick of the season's production and they will make friends with you on sight. The prices on these splendid weaves are no indication of either their value or their striking beauty.

NEW, CHARMING WHITEWEAR

A pleasant surprise is in store for the lovers of the beautiful who visit the Muslin Underwear Section this week. The French—always seeking something more luxurious, some outlet for a beauty-loving temperament—have scored again, and we are proud to offer two of the latest Parisian creations—a Gown and an Underskirt, neither of which you will be able to resist.

They are of Crepe de Chene, firm in quality and texture, yet of delicious softness; daintily trimmed, the Gowns with Lace Sleeve Insertion and Yoke, the Underskirts with Lace Insertion and wide Lace Flounce, the latter Accordion Plaited, giving it a particularly rich effect.

It is a real pleasure to offer these beautiful garments and we know you will appreciate this opportunity to secure them. They come in all sizes, but it would be advisable to make your selection early. They cannot last long. The prices are extremely low.

CITY BREVITIES.

Assistant Postmaster William J. Hoss announces that an examination for railway mail clerks will be held Saturday, May 3, in the federal court room.

Local friends have just received word of the marriage of Dr. C. L. Jones, formerly in charge of the New York Dental parlors, in this city, and Miss Olive McKown, daughter of Mrs. E. J. McKown, of this city. The ceremony was solemnized at Evansville where Dr. Jones is now located.

which are to be held probably Friday, May 9, although the exact date has not yet been announced. Members of the class are as follows: Miss Nora Davis, Miss Marguerite Carney, Miss Josephine Krick, Miss Mary MacDonald, Miss Estella Lehman and Mrs. Clara Woolford. The junior class entertained the seniors at a theater party and banquet on Monday night.

In the course of his remarks Bryan said: "I have been a member of the Y. M. C. A. for more than thirty years. The Y. M. C. A. develops men strong enough in mind and strong enough in body and strong enough in character to direct both body and mind. The Y. M. C. A. fulfills the mission of the school, the church and the gymnasium."

"If you can justify the expenditure of money for the erection of reformatories, you can justify the expense for a building to prevent young men from going to these reformatories. This is what the Y. M. C. A. does."
